New York State Chairman Refuses to Appear Except on Stipulation

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Through L. E. Sheppard, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, counsel for the Republican national committee, sought to show today before the Chicago section of the Senate campaign committee that "the LaFollette campaign is subsidized by the railroad brotherhoods."

Sheppard objected to being questioned regarding letters he has written to members of his order, including one to Fred Stewart of Oakland, California, saying that he wanted protection from going into matters that might cause controversy within his organization.

Weymouth Kirkland, counsel for the Republican national committee, insisted on having the correspondence, saying he thought the committee should be interested in getting at the facts and that he thought it would be interested. He added that he wanted to show that the railway labor organizations were interested in future legislation as to government ownership of the railroads and "laws affecting the use of the injunction in labor disputes."

Samuel Untermyer, New York lawyer and a supporter of John W. Davis, objected and he and Kirkland had several sharp tilts with a result that Chairman Borah said the committee might have to conduct the inquiry exclusively and independent of counsel. Senator Borah took over the examination.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—While the Washington end of the Senate campaign fund committee was inquiring into Republican collections in the east today Acting Chairman Caraway announced today he had received a telegram from George K. Morris, the Republican state chairman in New York, refusing to appear before the committee "except on certain stipulations."

"I wish to state that the committee is not making any stipulations or understandings with any witness," said Senator Caraway. "He can refuse to come if he wishes to take the consequences of refusal. I assume there is something he does not care to expose."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Joseph H. Grundy, chairman of the Pennsylvania ways and means committee, whose letter Senator LaFollette first quoted in charging a Republican "leak" today was notified by the Senate campaign investigating committee today that he "must" appear.

Grundy was a witness before the committee last week and was asked to testify again. The committee was notified by his office that he could not be located. His reappearance was regarded as "imperative," the committee message said.

HALVORSON TO SPEAK HERE

Will Appear With George
Shafer in Campaign
Speech

The closing meeting of the state political campaign will be held in Bismarck Monday night, November 3, in the city Auditorium, when Halvor Halvorson, coalition candidate for Governor, and George F. Shafer, candidate for reelection as Attorney-General, will deliver addresses.

It will be the first public address here of Mr. Halvorson, who has been making a steady campaign in various parts of the state. He is expected to sum up the issues in his address here.

Mr. Shafer, who is now out speaking, will discuss the issues, particularly from the standpoint of his experience on the state industrial commission.

The Independent organization here plans a big rally.

HAIL RODS WORTHLESS

Hail rods, forms of electric lightning rods put up against ballstorms, are considered worthless. The best form of security against devastation by ballstorm, according to the U. S. Weather Bureau, is hail insurance.

GIVES HUSBAND TO ANOTHER

Mrs. Mabel Lynn, 19, of Chicago, is going to give up her husband to "the other woman." William Lynn did not bother to divorce his 19-year-old wife when he married Mrs. Nedra May Smith, 45. Now Mabel is willing to give up Lynn, "because," she says, "love is a treasure. I have years yet to live. I am young. But she is growing old."

FIFTH VICTIM OF POISON IS DEAD IN EAST

Like Others He Became Violent Before Death—Antidote Is Discovered

New York, Oct. 30.—(By the A. P.)—A fifth victim of the mysterious gas poisoning in the research laboratory of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey at Bayway, N. J. died in a hospital here today. Herbert Fuson, 29 years old, of Elizabeth, was the latest victim. Before his death he had to be placed in a strait-jacket.

The last three victims have died at approximately the same hour on three successive mornings, all of them becoming violent before death. Eleven additional men suffering from the strange poisoning were brought to the hospital last night, bringing the total number of men affected to date to 33. Last night doctors at the hospital announced that they had discovered an antidote by which they hoped to save Fuson's life, but he died in the same violent manner as the others.

Only 10 of the 45 workers in the research laboratory at the Bayway plant of the oil company have failed to show symptoms of loss of reason to date, it was learned today.

LAND SALES IN COUNTY SHOW
DEMAND IS UP

Several Pieces of Land
Changed Hands in Burleigh
County Recently

That confidence has increased greatly in North Dakota lands is well proven by the fact that one real estate dealer in Bismarck has made several sales of late including a quarter section to H. N. Reed of McKenzie, a half section near Arnold to Carl Schulz, a quarter section east of Baldwin to Martin Bourgeois, a quarter section south of Regan to Henry Strom, a quarter near Menoken to George Young and another quarter near Britton to Adolph Geovonon.

This same dealer states that he has had more inquiries for prices and terms the past few weeks than he has had in years and has just recently sent out several offers on various tracts for local farmers, most of which, he feels certain will be accepted.

Land prices are low now, he says, lower than they have been in years but it is the general opinion amongst the farmers that values will rise and that now is the time to buy. None of them are disheartened over the fact that all our corn did not mature as, according to all reports, we, in Burleigh county, have a much higher percentage of matured corn than they have in most of the so-called corn states and there will be a great deal of our corn shipped out for seed direct from the farmers and not through seed houses or dealers. There will be a greater acreage of corn put in next year than ever before. There will be scarcely a vacancy farm in the county as inquiries are coming in fast for places to rent. There will be more hogs and milk cows than ever and fewer store bills to be met at the end of the season.

Burleigh County is on the start of its greatest growth and the future will be on a solid foundation. Land values will never again be as low as they are now.

This one dealer has sent out several thousand pieces of advertising matter the past few weeks and has received a number of very encouraging replies from outsiders, private parties and agents, and the coming year is looking for one of the biggest business years he has ever done.

COLLECTION OF

Case Involving Old Consumers Stores Obligations To Be Contested

Right of banks or other parties holding notes given by farmers to the Consumers United Stores Company, which sought to establish cooperative stores in the state a few years ago, to enforce collection of the notes will be tested out in court. Judgments taken on behalf of the Peoples State Bank of Grand Forks, now closed, against several Burleigh county farmers for amounts ranging from $150 to $200 were appealed from justice court to district court, and E. S. Allen, attorney for the defendants, said today the enforcement of collection would be resisted.

The defendants will assert, he said, that the farmers cannot be forced to pay the notes because there was "no consideration," that they did not get into the hands of a third party before due and that holders "had legal knowledge that there was no consideration."

MOUNTIES KILL
MAN N. D. WANTS

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 30.—Winnipeg mounted police shot and killed a man close to the boundary line recently. He is supposed to be wanted by North Dakota authorities. He gave the name of John Pearson when taken off the train Monday by a Canadian customs officer for illegal entry into Canada. He escaped from the detention room and firing three shots as he fled across the prairie pursued by two mounties in an auto. Nearing Pearson police called on him to surrender. His reply was a shot which came close to the head of Constable Gilbert. Both mounties then fired and Pearson dropped dead. Inquiries are being made at North Dakota points regarding his history.

DAWES IN MISSOURI

Speaks at St. Joseph—LaFollette Invades Home State of Coolidge

New York, Oct. 30.—The third statement of the series prepared by John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President for the purpose of summing up outstanding campaign issues was made public today. It was confined exclusively to a discussion of the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill which the candidate has declared will be rewritten if he is elected and is given the support of a Democratic Congress.

In renewing his promise for lower schedules Mr. Davis made it clear that he harbored no resentment toward legitimate business fairly conducted but would "withdraw the invitation extended in the form of exorbitant rates of duty" to profit through monopolistic control of production, markets and prices.

WEST OF MISSISSIPPI

St. Louis, Oct. 30.—Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for Vice-President, traveled across Missouri today to St. Joseph to deliver tonight in the territory west of the Mississippi his final attack on the LaFollette independent candidacy.

No addresses were scheduled for the journey from here to St. Joseph and Mr. Dawes, after his speech tonight, will return to Chicago to spend Friday night at his home at Evanston, before undertaking his final campaign tour Saturday into Indiana.

FOR PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Albany, Oct. 30.—(By the A. P.)—Timed for a 34-hour invasion of Massachusetts, President Coolidge's home state, Senator LaFollette left here for Boston where he speaks tonight.

The independent presidential candidate stopped here on his way from Schenectady last night where in an address he advocated government ownership of water power and declared that "when we purge our life of monopoly through government ownership we purge our government of corruption as well."

Senator LaFollette announced that in Boston he would discuss "imperialism and the on-sweeping drive of American gold and American oil in the hands of the House of Morgan and the House of Rockefeller in combat with imperialistic Great Britain to make an American-Anglo conquest of the world."

FIRE BEYOND
CONTROL AGAIN
IN N. D. MINE

State Mine Inspector Receives
Call For Assistance
From Haynes

Fire which has been slowly burning in the lignite coal mine of the Haynes Coal Company at Haynes for almost two years is again out of control, according to a telegram received today by J. P. Mellon, state mine inspector, requesting his mine to the mine. Mr. Mellon left this afternoon.

The fire had been brought under control through use of pumps and by digging around it, but the pumps broke down and were consumed by fire, together with other equipment, Mr. Mellon said.

When the fire was at its worst fear was expressed that it would spread to the holdings of the state of South Dakota, adjoining.

WHITE GIVEN
STAR BY U. S.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 30.—A citation for gallantry in action from the Philippine war, entitling the recipient to wear the silver star, has just been awarded by the United States war department to Col. Frank White, formerly of Valley City, governor of North Dakota for two terms, and now treasurer of the United States.

Colonel White formerly colonel, United States infantry, and major of the First North Dakota infantry, and distinguished himself in action against insurgent forces in the Philippines in February 1899.

Similar citations have been awarded to two other officers, being for gallantry in the Cuban campaign of 1898, while one posthumous award was made.

On the west coast of Africa, canned whale meat has become an established commodity.

BIG CHIEF

With the campaign on, President Coolidge is doing a lot of smiling for the cameramen. He also is having many honors thrust upon him. Here he is with a hat of the Smoki tribesmen, sent to him by the Chamber of Commerce of Prescott, Ariz., when he was made a member of the tribe.

RAIN, COLDER
BREAKS FINE
N. D. WEATHER

Unsettled Weather Follows
Moving of Pressure Area
From Rocky Mountains

After Bismarck had basked in perfect Indian summer weather for many days, the weather man decreed a change last night, which brought rain, colder weather, with the prospect of still more unsettled weather and lower temperatures tonight.

The light rain in some places in North Dakota will interrupt threshing operations. Great progress had been made in threshing in the last 10 days and many who travel in this territory declare that a full week of good threshing weather would end threshing in the southern half of North Dakota.

The temperature rose to 72 above in Bismarck yesterday, before a change set in.

A deep low pressure area centered over the northern Rocky Mountain region yesterday forming and then moved eastward until it now extends from the Mississippi Valley westward to the Rocky Mountain Slope. It is accompanied by abnormally high temperatures over the central states. Much colder weather prevails over the Plateau and middle Rocky Mountain states, the weather bureau report says.

Precipitation occurred at a few places in North Dakota.

The thermometer fell to 38 above last night at Williston, with the weather cloudy. The lowest last night in Bismarck was 45 above and the lowest in Fargo 52 above.

DEATH PENALTY IS INFLICTED

Young Swiss Meets Death
Unflinchingly

Berne, Switzerland, Oct. 30.—(By the A. P.)—The death penalty was inflicted yesterday in Switzerland for the first time in 22 years. At Aldorf, capital of the Canton of Uri, Clement Bernet was guillotined for the murder of a young girl who surprised him while in the act of burglary.

Bernet was the least concerned person at the execution. Becoming converted while in prison he refused an appeal for commutation and, as he approached the scaffold, he tore the black hood from his head explaining:

"My victim stared death in the face; it is but just that I do likewise."

MANAGER SELECTION

C. E. Austin Chosen in Part
Because of Absence of Political Ties, He Says

Grafton, N. D., Oct. 30.—Governor R. A. Nestos, in a speech at Grafton, reviewed, in the course of his political address, the history of the state-owned mill and elevator at Grand Forks, and charged political opponents would put political management in the mill through abolishing the board of managers created. The dealing with the various state industries, the Governor said of the Grand Forks mill:

"The platform of the Independents again declares for a full, fair, and honest trial of this project. The convention felt that the losses during the past year were considerable, that in view of the continued construction work during the first half of the year and the difficulties connected with building a new business, the experience to date could not as yet be regarded as a full and fair trial and that we should therefore continue the state management of this project until such time as the evidence of its value to the state should be so complete and fair as to satisfy all reasonable men."

"While the Independents did not believe that it was either wise or profitable for the state to make great investments in buildings, machinery, and working capital to go into business in competition with citizens and taxpayers of the state, yet we were of the opinion that since more than a million dollars had been spent in the partial erection of the walls of the mill and elevator at Grand Forks, and contracts entered into for the completion of the buildings and the manufacture of most of the machinery required, and since the majority of our people apparently desired to try this experiment, we should complete the project and give it a full, fair, and honest trial. This we have done and are doing. Some would have you believe that, since some losses have been suffered, we were not acting in good faith and trying to achieve success. In this they know they are wrong and unfair."

Cabinet Member

Washington, Oct. 30.—President Coolidge will seek the views of farm leaders during the next few days before determining upon selection of a successor to the late Secretary Wallace.

Few political engagements are on the President's list between now and election day and he has indicated to friends that he will take practically no further active part in the campaign, feeling satisfied with the progress made.

Several names already have been submitted to the President for the cabinet vacancy, including Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois; John Lee Coulter, president of the North Dakota Agricultural College; Charles March of Litchfield, Minn.; and Samuel Adams, former president of the Agricultural Editors Association.

London, Oct. 30.—(By the A. P.)—The people of Great Britain have put a crushing end to their first experiment with Labor government by returning the Conservative party to power in parliament with one of the strongest majorities recorded during the last century.

In the sweeping political change, the Liberal party has sunk to its weakest position it has experienced since the realignment of British political parties more than 90 years ago at the time of the reform bill.

LABOR FALL MARKED

With 545 of the 615 seats in the House of Commons accounted for at 4 o'clock this afternoon, the Liberals had won only 37 and the Conservatives had already captured 359 and were increasing their lead constantly as the returns came in from the country districts. Labor had won 137 seats and was thus assured of being the official opposition party in the new parliament.

The severest blow for the Liberals was the defeat of Mr. Asquith, whose loss to the Laborites in Paisley broke the Liberal record of 92 years in that constituency.

The Liberal leader took his defeat smilingly but afterward admitted profound disappointment and said he regretted severance of his connections with Paisley "for the time being at any rate."

Avoid from all party considerations his loss is generally deplored as the disappearance, temporarily, at least, of one of the country's most distinguished statesmen.

Winston Churchill, contesting as a "Constitutionalist" candidate the Epping division of Essex, was elected to the House of Commons.

MacDonald Wins

Prime Minister Ramsey MacDonald was re-elected to Parliament. Mr. MacDonald received 17,724 votes while his Liberal opponent polled 15,624.

Former Premier David Lloyd George, Liberal, was also elected to the House of Commons, polling 10,058 votes to 3,401 for his Laborite opponent.

Attorney-General Patrick Hastings, whose conduct of the Campbell prosecution was an indirect cause of the downfall of the Labor government, retained his seat at Walsand, polling 17,375 votes against 15,672 for his Conservative opponent.

Will Be Able to Rule

Unlike the Labor government which has just fallen, the Conservatives will be able to rule as well as to govern and perhaps thus to stay fixed in the governmental saddle for the full legal parliamentary life time of five years, if they want to, so strong was the tide that has carried them to triumph.

There was no extensive part of the country in which the Conservatives did not increase their strength. They captured long lost seats in cities and rural districts alike.

The thickly populated industrial centers of the North Midlands abandoned both Liberals and Laborites to get under the Tory banner as did the great shipping centers and the small towns and villages, almost without exception, in every farming area of the nation.

Labour held tight its grip upon most of the congested areas in the great urban centers such as Glasgow and London, but even some of these shifted from Socialism to Conservatism.

Lost Many Seats

Labour has lost many seats but it remains to be seen whether it has lost ground with the electorate. It is generally considered, however, that when all the votes are tabulated it is not likely to be found that Labor has polled as many as it did a year ago.

The luck that put many Laborites into Parliament last year through minority polls on three-sided fights left them out of the House this year.

Many Liberals stepped down to permit Conservatives to have straight fights with Liberal opponents and the great majority of Liberals who did not step down were put down when the ballots were counted.

New York State Chairman Refuses to Appear Except on Stipulation

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Through L. E. Sheppard, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, counsel for the Republican national committee sought to show today before the Chicago section of the Senate campaign committee that the LaFollette campaign is subsidized by the railroad brotherhoods.

Sheppard objected to being questioned regarding letters he has written to members of his order, including one to Fred Stewart of Oakland, California, saying that he wanted protection from going into matters that might cause controversy within his organization.

Weymouth Kirkland, counsel for the Republican national committee, insisted on having the correspondence, saying he thought the committee should be interested in getting at the facts and that he thought it would be interested. He added that he wanted to show that the railway labor organizations were interested in future legislation as to government ownership of the railroads and laws affecting the use of the junction in labor disputes.

Samuel Untermyer, New York lawyer and a supporter of John W. Davis, objected and he and Kirkland had several sharp tilts with a result that Chairman Borah said the committee might have to conduct the inquiry exclusively and independent of counsel. Senator Borah took over the examination.

REFUSES TO APPEAR

Washington, Oct. 30.—While the Washington end of the Senate campaign fund committee was inquiring into Republican collections in the east today Acting Chairman Caraway announced today he had received a telegram from George K. Morris, the Republican state chairman in New York, refusing to appear before the committee "except on certain stipulations."

"I wish to state that the committee is not making any stipulations or understandings with any witness," said Senator Caraway. "He can refuse to come if he wishes to take the consequences of refusal. I assume there is something he does not care to expose."

DEMAND APPEARANCE

Washington, Oct. 30.—Joseph H. Grundy, chairman of the Pennsylvania ways and means committee, whose letter Senator LaFollette first quoted in charging a Republican "slush fund" was notified by the Senate campaign investigating committee today that he "must" appear. Grundy was a witness before the committee last week and was asked to testify again. The committee was notified by his office that he could not be located. His reappearance was regarded as "imperative," the committee message said.

The closing meeting of the state political campaign will be held in Bismarck Monday night, November 3, in the city Auditorium, when Halvor Halvorson, coalition candidate for Governor, and George F. Shafer, candidate for reelection as Attorney-General, will deliver addresses.

It will be the first public address here of Mr. Halvorson, who has been making a steady campaign in various parts of the state. He is expected to sum up the issues in his address here.

Mr. Shafer, who is now out speaking, will discuss the issues, particularly from the standpoint of his experience on the state industrial commission.

The independent organization here plans a big rally.

FIFTH VICTIM OF POISON IS DEAD IN EAST

Like Others He Became Violent Before Death—Antidote Is Discovered

New York, Oct. 30.—(By the A. P.)—A fifth victim of the mysterious gas poisoning in the research laboratory of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey at Bayway, N. J., died in a hospital here today. Herbert Fuson, 29 years old, of Elizabeth, was the latest victim. Before his death he had to be placed in a strait jacket.

The last three victims have died at approximately the same hour on three successive mornings, all of them becoming violent before death. Eleven additional men suffering from the strange poisoning were brought to the hospital last night, bringing the total number of men affected to date to 32. Last night doctors at the hospital announced that they had discovered an antidote by which they hoped to save Fuson's life, but he died in the same violent manner as the others.

Only 10 of the 45 workers in the research laboratory at the Bayway plant of the oil company have failed to show symptoms of loss of reason to date, it was learned today.

COLLECTION OF NOTES TO BE RESISTED HERE

Case Involving Old Consumers Stores Obligations To Be Contested

Right of banks or other parties holding notes given by farmers to the Consumers United Stores Company, which sought to establish co-operative stores in the state a few years ago, to enforce collection of the notes will be tested out in court. Judgments taken on behalf of the Peoples State Bank of Grand Forks, now closed, against several Burleigh county farmers for amounts ranging from $150 to $200 were appealed from justice court to district court, and E. S. Allen, attorney for the defendants, said today the enforcement of collection would be resisted.

The defendants will assert, he said, that the farmers cannot be forced to pay the notes because there was "no consideration," that they did not get into the hands of a third party before due and that holders "had legal knowledge that there was no consideration."

MOUNTIES KILL MAN N. D. WANTS

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 30.—Winnipeg mounted police shot and killed a man close to the boundary line recently. He is supposed to be wanted by North Dakota authorities. He gave the name of John Pearson when taken off the train Monday by a Canadian customs officer for illegal entry into Canada. He escaped from the detention room and firing three shots as he fled across the prairie pursued by two mounties in an auto. Nearing Pearson police called on him to surrender. His reply was a shot which came close to the head of Constable Gilbert. Both mounties then fired and Pearson dropped dead. Inquiries are being made at North Dakota points regarding his history.

LAND SALES IN COUNTY SHOW DEMAND IS UP

Several Pieces of Land Changed Hands in Burleigh County Recently

That confidence has increased greatly in North Dakota lands is well proven by the fact that one real estate dealer in Bismarck has made several sales of late including a quarter section to H. N. Reed of McKenzie, a half section near Arnold to Carl Schulz, a quarter section east of Baldwin to Martin Bourgeois, a quarter section south of Regan to Henry Strom, a quarter near Menoken to George Young and another quarter near Britton to Adolph Geovononi.

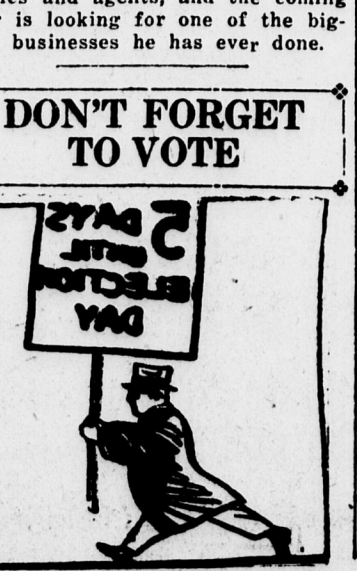

This same dealer states that he has had more inquiries for prices and terms the past few weeks than he has had in years and has just recently sent out several offers on various tracts for local farmers, most of which, he feels certain will be accepted.

Land prices are low now, he says, lower than they have been in years but it is the general opinion amongst the farmers that values will rise and that now is the time to buy. None of them are disheartened over the fact that all our corn did not mature as, according to all reports, we, in Burleigh county, have a much higher percentage of matured corn than they have in most of the so-called corn states and there will be a great deal of our corn shipped out for seed direct from the farmers and not through seed houses or dealers. There will be a greater acreage of corn put in next year than ever before. There will be more hogs and milk cows than ever and fewer store bills to be met at the end of the season.

Burleigh County is on the start of its greatest growth and the future will be on a solid foundation. Land values will never again be as low as they are now.

This one dealer has sent out several thousand pieces of advertising matter the past few weeks and has received a number of very encouraging replies from outsiders, private parties and agents, and the coming year is looking for one of the biggest businesses he has ever done.

Speaks at St. Joseph—LaFollette Invades Home State of Coolidge

New York, Oct. 30.—The third statement of the series prepared by John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President for the purpose of summing up outstanding campaign issues was made public today. It was confined exclusively to a discussion of the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill which the candidate has declared will be rewritten if he is elected and is given the support of a Democratic Congress.

In renewing his promise for lower schedules Mr. Davis made it clear that he harbored no resentment toward legitimate business fairly conducted but would "withdraw the invitation extended in the form of exorbitant rates of duty" to profit through monopolistic control of production, markets and prices.

WEST OF MISSISSIPPI

St. Louis, Oct. 30.—Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for Vice-President, traveled across Missouri today to St. Joseph to deliver tonight in the territory west of the Mississippi his final attack on the LaFollette independent candidacy. No addresses were scheduled for the journey from here to St. Joseph and Mr. Dawes, after his speech tonight, will return to Chicago to spend Friday night at his home at Evanston, before undertaking his final campaign tour Saturday into Indiana.

FOR PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Albany, Oct. 30.—(By the A. P.)—Timed for a 3 o'clock invasion of Massachusetts, President Coolidge's home state, Senator LaFollette left here for Boston where he speaks tonight. The independent presidential candidate stopped here on his way from Schenectady last night where in an address he attacked the government ownership of water power and declared that "when we purge our life of monopoly through government ownership we purge our government of corruption as well."

Senator LaFollette announced that in Boston he would discuss "imperialism and the on-sweeping drive of American gold and American oil in the hands of the House of Morgan and the House of Rockefeller in combat with imperialistic Great Britain to make an American-Anglo conquest of the world."

FIRE BEYOND CONTROL AGAIN IN N. D. MINE

State Mine Inspector Receives Call For Assistance From Haynes

Fire which has been slowly burning in the lignite coal mine of the Haynes Coal Company at Haynes for almost two years is again out of control, according to a telegram received today by J. P. Mellon, state mine inspector, requesting his to come to the mine. Mr. Mellon left this afternoon.

The fire had been brought under control through use of pumps and by digging around it, but the pumps broke down and were consumed by fire, together with other equipment, Mr. Mellon said.

When the fire was at its worst fear was expressed that it would spread to the holdings of the state of South Dakota, adjoining.

RAIN, COLDER BREAKS FINE N. D. WEATHER

Unsettled Weather Follows Moving of Pressure Area From Rocky Mountains

After Bismarck had basked in perfect Indian summer weather for many days, the weather man decreed a change last night, which brought rain, colder weather, with the prospect of still more unsettled weather and lower temperatures tonight.

The light rain in some places in North Dakota will interrupt threshing operations. Great progress had been made in the state in the last 10 days and many who travel in this territory declare that a full week of good threshing weather would end threshing in the southern half of North Dakota.

Thy temperature rose to 72 above in Bismarck yesterday, before a change set in.

A deep low pressure area centered over the northern Rocky Mountain region yesterday forcing rain and then moved eastward until it now extends from the Mississippi Valley westward to the Rocky Mountain Slope. It is accompanied by abnormally high temperatures over the central states. Much colder weather prevails over the Plateau and middle Rocky Mountain states, the weather bureau report says. Precipitation occurred at a few places in North Dakota.

The thermometer fell to 38 above last night at Williston, with the weather cloudy. The lowest light in Bismarck was 45 above and the lowest in Fargo 52 above.

DEATH PENALTY IS INFLICTED

Young Swiss Meets Death Unflinchingly

Berne, Switzerland, Oct. 30.—(By the A. P.)—The death penalty was inflicted yesterday in Switzerland for the first time in 22 years. At Aldorf, capital of the Canton of Uri, Clement Bernet was guillotined for the murder of a young girl who surprised him while in the act of burglary.

Bernet was the least concerned person at the execution. Becoming converted while in prison he refused an appeal for commutation and, as he approached the scaffold, he tore the black hood from his head explaining:

"My victim stared death in the face; it is but just that I do likewise."

Forks Officials Hit Tax Bill

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 30.—Resolutions condemning the initiated tax reduction bill to be voted on Nov. 4, were adopted at a meeting here yesterday of city and county officials representing all taxing bodies in Grand Forks county.

The resolutions declare "we are in sympathy with the idea of tax reduction," and favor rigid public economy, but express the belief that the initiated measure is not the best way of obtaining tax reduction and economy.

The resolutions also assert that the measure is unwise and an unnecessary interference with the right of communities to have what they need, express the belief that the bill would cripple the school system, and urge voters to ballot no.

EXPERIENCE OF STATE IN MILL BUSINESS TOLD

Grafton Nestos, in Grafton Speech, Says Politics Was Kept Out Of It

MANAGER SELECTION

C. E. Austin Chosen in Part Because of Absence of Political Ties, He Says

Grafton, N. D., Oct. 30.—Governor R. A. Nestos, in a speech at Grafton, reviewed, in the course of his political address, the history of the state-owned mill and elevator at Grand Forks, and charged political opponents would put political management in the bill through abolishing the board of managers created. The industrial dealing with the various state industries, the Governor said of the Grand Forks mill:

"The platform of the Independents again declares for a full, fair, and honest trial of this project. The contention felt that the losses during the past year were considerable, shot in view of the continued construction work during the first half of the year and the difficulties connected with building a new business, the experience to date could not as yet be regarded as a full and fair trial, and that we should therefore continue the state management of this project until such time as the evidence of its value to the state should be so complete and fair as to satisfy all reasonable men."

"While the Independents did not believe that it was either wise or profitable for the state to make investments in buildings, machinery, and working capital to go into business in competition with citizens and taxpayers of the state, yet we were of the opinion that since more than a million dollars had been spent in the partial erection of the walls of the mill and elevator at Grand Forks, and contracts entered into for the completion of the buildings and the manufacture of most of the machinery required, and since the majority of our people apparently desired to try this experiment, we should complete the project and give it a full, fair, and honest trial. This we have done and are doing. Some would have you believe that, since some losses have been suffered, we were not acting in good faith and trying to achieve success. In this they know they are wrong and unfair."

Expected Loss At Start

"No man of any business experience or judgment supposed that during the first year, while we were still busy with building operations and alterations, while we were training a working force outside and inside of the mill and elevator, and while we were creating a market for 'Dakota Maid' flour in competition with many excellent and well known brands that had been sold for years, we should be able to make a profit or even pay running expenses. Every person who knew anything about the business told us very frankly that we were bound to suffer big losses the first year. While we have tried to keep the losses as low as possible, every member of the administration, and I am sure, every other reasonable man expected that the statement would show a loss for the first year. Mr. Austin, the general manager, himself told the legislative committee last winter that they should not feel discouraged even if they experienced a loss the first year should approximate a quarter of a million dollars."

"When the project was nearing completion, the problem that confronted the industrial commission was the best method to be used to secure the honest and efficient management that would enable us to give the project a full, fair, and honest trial as promised to the people. It was necessary that we should secure the head miller and the superintendent of the elevator immediately to help supervise the installation of the machinery in the mill and elevator. With the cooperation of a committee of the commercial club at Grand Forks, we were fortunate in securing an excellent head miller and an elevator superintendent of wide and successful experience."

"When the first unit of the mill was completed, it seemed plain to the industrial commission and it was (Continued on page 3)

COOLIDGE TO TAKE TIME ON APPOINTMENT

President to Consult Farm Leaders Before Naming Cabinet Member

Washington, Oct. 30.—President Coolidge will seek the views of farm leaders during the next few days before determining upon selection of a successor to the late Secretary Wallace.

Few political engagements are on the President's list between now and election day and he has indicated to friends that he will take practically no further active part in the campaign, feeling satisfied with the progress made.

Several names already have been submitted to the President for the cabinet vacancy, including Frank O. ### TREATY SIGNED PLEDGING END OF TONG WAR

Discovered That Murderous Conflict Had Inception Over Business Rivalry

New York, Oct. 30.—(By the A. P.)—The murder of another Chinese today halted official negotiations which it had been hoped would end the Hip Sing-On Leong tong war.

New York, Oct. 30.—An armistice has been declared in the tong war and it is expected that a nation-wide peace will be formally declared in Chinatown today.

At a meeting of representatives of the warring On Leong and Hip Sing tongs here last night at which the Consul-General acted as mediator a treaty was approved. All that remains to bring an end to the hostilities which have raged in at least seven great cities of the country and has caused a score of casualties are the signatures of the leaders of the rival leaders of the tongs.

It was learned last night that the latest outbreak of the tong war was the result of a business rivalry between the tongs of 25 years standing. Police learned from members of the tongs that the treaty to be signed today determines the merchandise rights of each side.

CONSERVATIVE LEADERSTAKE BIG VICTORY

Win Clear Majority in Parliament, Ousting the Labor Government

LABOR FALL MARKED

Liberal Party Also Crushed Between Opposition of Two Extremes

London, Oct. 30.—(By the A. P.)—The people of Great Britain have put a crushing end to their first experiment with Labor government by returning the Conservative party to power in parliament with one of the strongest majorities recorded during the last century.

In the sweeping political change, the Liberal party has sunk to its weakest position it has experienced since the realignment of British political parties more than 90 years ago at the time of the reform bill.

Liberals Fall

With 545 of the 615 seats in the House of Commons accounted for at 4 o'clock this afternoon, the Liberals had won only 37 and the Conservatives had already captured 359 and were increasing their lead constantly as the returns came in from the country districts. Labor had won 137 seats and was thus assured of losing the country's opposition party in the new parliament.

The severest blow for the Liberals was the defeat of Mr. Asquith, whose loss to the Laborite Mitchell in Paisley broke the Liberal record of 92 years in that constituency.

The Liberal leader took his defeat smilingly, but afterward admitted profound disappointment and said he regretted severance of his connections with Paisley "for the time being at any rate."

Aside from all party considerations his loss is generally deplored as the disappearance, temporarily, at least, of one of the country's most distinguished statesmen.

Winston Churchill, contesting as a Constitutional candidate the Epping division of Essex, was elected to the House of Commons.

MacDonald Wins

Prime Minister Ramsey MacDonald was reelected to Parliament. Mr. MacDonald received 17,724 votes while his Liberal opponent polled 15,624.

Former Premier David Lloyd George, Liberal, was also reelected to the House of Commons, polling 16,058 votes to 3,401 for his Laborite opponent.

Attorney-General Patrick Hastings, whose conduct of the Campbell prosecution was an indirect cause of the downfall of the Labor government, retained his seat at Walsend, polling 17,275 votes against 15,672 for his Conservative opponent.

Will Be Able to Rule

Unlike the Labor government which has just fallen, the Conservatives will be able to rule as well as to govern and perhaps thus to stay fixed in the governmental saddle for the full legal parliamentary life time of five years, if they want to, so strong was the tide that has carried them to triumph.

There was no extensive part of the country in which the Conservatives did not increase their strength. They captured long lost seats in cities and rural districts alike.

The thickly populated industrial centers of the North Midlands abandoned both Liberals and Laborites to get under the Tory banner as did the great shipping centers and the small towns and villages almost without exception, in every farming area of the nation.

Labor held tight its grip upon most of the congested areas in the great urban centers such as Glasgow and London, but even some of these shifted from Socialism to Conservatism.

Lost Many Seats

Labor has lost many seats but it remains to be seen whether it has lost ground with the electorate. It is generally considered, however, that when all the votes are tabulated it is not likely to be found that Labor has polled as many as it did a year ago.

The luck that put many Laborites into Parliament last year through minority polls on three-sided fights left them out of the House this year.

Many Liberals stepped down to permit Conservatives to have straight fights with Liberal opponents and the great majority of Liberals who did not step down were put down when the ballots were counted.

TAX REDUCTION BILL ATTACKED BY EDUCATORS

Measure. It Is Asserted. Would Lower Efficiency of Schools in State

ARGUMENT ANSWERED

Taxpayers Body Asserts That Measure Is Necessary to Prevent Confiscation

Arguments for and against the proposed law, to be voted on November 4, providing for a reduction in taxes by law, is being carried on in the state by the North Dakota Education Association, against the bill, and the State Taxpayers Association, for the bill.

The North Dakota Education Association charges that the bill would adversely affect the school of the state, while the taxpayers body asserts the bill is necessary to bring about normal conditions in North Dakota. Education Association, in part, says:

1. It will lower the efficiency of the teaching staff. Why? In Grand Forks city 71 percent of the school levy is paid out for teachers' salaries. The other charges are practically free. The city cannot spend less for fuel. The other items, like janitors, supplies, etc., cannot be cut and if so, the future would be extremely small and would at the same time reduce efficiency. What does it then mean? It means that the salaries of teachers must be cut approximately 23 1/3 per cent. Do you for a minute imagine that a well qualified teacher will remain in North Dakota if her salary is going to be cut 23 1/3 per cent? They can and will go elsewhere. What is the result? Your schools will be manned by fewer teachers, by less experienced teachers, by poorly prepared teachers. And a school is just as good as its efficiency in its teaching staff.

2. It will lower the standard of schools. Probably we will have fewer teachers. Some courses may be eliminated. A shorter school year may be suggested. What does that mean? Would you want to send your children to inferior schools?

3. It may eliminate part of the High School work. In fact in some cities and towns, it will close the High Schools entirely and some of the rural schools will be forced to close. What then about the boys and girls? What then about the future citizens of this State? Do not say that this won't happen. It will happen since the cut will be equivalent to the cost of running the High School. And, no doubt, some places will desire to keep a good grade school even if they must sacrifice the High School.

4. What about our Higher Institutions of learning? The University, the Agricultural College and Normal Schools? What would the University be without its college of Medicine, Law, Health Department, Extension Department, University High School?

5. The bill is unfair, unscientific and undemocratic. Why is it unfair? It penalizes the school districts that have been most economical. Devils Lake must cut her school levy still 25 per cent. The district that has been the most extravagant, it is the one that will be least affected.

Why unscientific? The State of North Dakota was hit hard for the last few years. Taxes have gone up. Taxes probably could be reduced, but has there been an investigation where they should be reduced? No, arbitrarily, the bill simply says all taxing bodies must limit their levies to 75 per cent of the levy of 1923. It does not discriminate. It does not weigh facts and consider effects. By one fell swoop it simply says, "You

Republican Work To Better Marketing Conditions Wins Women's Approbation

FARM WOMEN WHO PRODUCE AND TOWN AND CITY WOMEN WHO BUY ARE JOINT BENEFICIARIES OF NEW PLANK IN PLATFORM

This is the fifth of a series of five articles by Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, vice-chairman of the Republican National Committee, and chairman of the Women's Division of that committee. Mrs. Hert discusses what she considers vital campaign issues from the woman's standpoint.

BY MRS. ALVIN T. HERT

Not alone do the women of the farm who produce and the women of the town and city who buy are joint beneficiaries of the new plank in platform. There is also a demand for dairy products and fruit and vegetables. More than one-half of our population now lives in towns and cities. The great problem is to get the products from the farm to the city consumer.

A plan whereby a group of neighbors may market their products together means a saving of both time and money to the farmer's wife.

Until February, 1922 there was no federal law recognizing marketing associations. Co-operative marketing associations, it is true, had grown up in many states, but these associations had no right to engage in interstate or foreign commerce. For this reason and for the purpose of giving further encouragement to the organization of such associations by the farmers of this country, the Republican Congress passed the co-operating marketing association act.

This law gives to men and women on the farms the right to form associations for collecting, preparing and marketing their output and to sell their products outside their states and to foreign countries wherever they find available markets.

It was because of the belief of the Republican party that the tax money have mis-stated its contents and misrepresented its effect. The law will control and not what they say.

Taxes in five years have confiscated all the property of 50 per cent of our farmers.

Taxes have driven from North Dakota 87,000 of our population since 1919.

Taxes have increased from $11,992,991 to $51,913,425, in North Dakota in twelve years.

Taxes to educate a child in our common schools have increased from $26.00 in 1915 to $110 in 1923.

Taxes to maintain our University and State Educational institutions increased from $700,754 in 1918, to $2,172,786 in 1923. The cost of maintaining our Hospital for the Insane and our charitable and penal institutions decreased $23,000 per annum in the same period.

These figures demonstrate that our educational system can lower expenses 25 percent without injury.

We have less people, farm incomes have decreased 50 per cent and our taxes are three times as much.

Taxes must be heeded according to the people's ability to pay. Pass the bill and all institutions will be made more efficient.

After retiring from his work as a gardener at the age of 70, a man in Sunbury, England, took up cycling and rode 46,000 miles before he died.

Entered Bank in Scotland as an Apprentice Many Years Ago

Chicago, Oct. 29.—James B. Forgan, for more than a quarter of a century one of the leading bankers of the middlewest, died here last night, after an illness of but a few days. He was 72 years old.

Despite an arduous and active life in the financial world, Mr. Forgan had been in excellent health until recently when he became a sufferer from ulcers of the stomach. Last week he collapsed while at his desk and a few days thereafter submitted to a blood transfusion operation which brought temporary relief.

James Berwick Forgan was born at St. Andrews, Scotland, April 11, 1852, and was educated at Madras college, St. Andrews and Forbes academy, Forbes, Scotland. After leaving school he began his career as a banker by entering the service of the Royal Bank of Scotland as an apprentice.

Later he applied for a position in the Bank of British North America and obtained it after a competitive examination and shortly thereafter

Kellogg's Bran delights father by bringing health to children

Poor little kids—they needed bran badly. But they wouldn't eat ordinary bran. They didn't like them. Most folks don't. Then their father tried Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. What a difference! He tells the story in his letter:

"Dear Sirs: I wish to express my appreciation of your krumbled bran, which I have used for my children this summer. We had a great deal of trouble with them through constipation, and bran had been the most satisfactory remedy but they could not be induced to take the old varieties. . . . because they disliked them so. They enjoy the krumbled bran and consider it an essential ingredient of their porridge. No one whose children have not been troubled in this way can appreciate the relief there is in having their bowels move regularly."

GREAT BUILDING YEAR
Chicago, Oct. 29.—Indications are that 1924 will be the greatest building year in the history of the country, according to a review made public by the Indiana Limestone Quarriers' Association. Building construction for the first eight months of the year has reached a total of $3,420,000,000. And there still is a widespread demand for building.

There are more than 800,000 miners in the British Isles.

OTHER TAXES MIGHT FOLLOW TAX CUT BILL

State Tax Commissioner, in Talk Discusses Effect of Proposed Measure

SOME OF HARDSHIPS

State Tax Commissioner C. C. Converse, analyzing the proposed initiated tax reduction measure to be voted on November 4, before the League of Women Voters here, declined to advise his auditors how to vote on the bill, but pointed to some of its effects and indicated that should the measure pass and impose undue hardships the situation would not be entirely irremedial.

"If the measure should become a law, it cannot be repealed by the legislature nor amended unless two-thirds of the members of both houses unite in that repeal or amendment," he said. "If it can be established that the measure will be disastrous to the schools, there is no question in my mind but that a majority of the legislature will vote in favor of amendment. If a mistake should be made, I do not consider that it would be irremedial. Even without the amendment the question is open for certain modifications of our plan of public finance."

State Effect

"Suppose we start with the state government: If the measure becomes a law, I assume that it will be necessary to discontinue state aid to local schools and also to decrease expenditures for state educational institutions, possibly discontinuing the appropriation altogether for two or three of the smaller institutions. Most counties will be able to go ahead with the public business, I believe, because it is possible for the legislature to add enough to the tax upon gasoline so as to supply the counties with the necessary funds. They will thus be able to comply with the law by eliminating the levy for rate purposes. Cities and villages will have a hard time to comply with the measure. A problem will be serious in some places."

"However, the proposed law does not affect the county tuition fund so that it is possible for the legislature to use the county tuition fund levy as a means of county aid to high schools. Or, for that matter, county aid to high schools and other local schools. The legislature can increase, if it sees fit, the amount of the county tuition levy."

"The conclusion is that even a bare majority of the legislature can find ways in which to temper to a great extent any undue hardships which may result from the measure if it becomes a law."

The tax commissioner said tax limitation laws were not new, but that opponents of the initiated bill claim it is unduly harsh. The bill, he said, in brief provides that in each of the years 1925, 1926 and 1927, no taxing district shall levy an amount in excess of 75 percent of the amount levied by that particular district for 1923. The limitation does not affect levies for the purpose of providing sinking funds to retire bonds, or bond interest, and does not apply to the county tuition, soldiers' bonus and some other levies. It is provided that voters may authorize a levy within 10 percent of the 1923 levy, and that in any event a district shall have the right to levy as much taxes as was levied in 1918.

"Some proponents of the bill admit the terms of the bill will impose undue hardship in some instances," said Mr. Converse, "but they say that those instances are few and far between and that we must be governed by what is for the good of the greatest number, the great majority. They assert further that if each citizen thinks upon this measure in the light of conditions in his own particular county, township, city or school district, the final result will be in harmony with what is for the good of the greatest number."

Bowman, N. D., Oct. 30.—Herman Meyer, H. W. Clarkson and F. M. Clarkson, officials of the defunct State bank of Bowman, at a hearing here, were bound over to district court, under $2,000 bonds each, on the charge of accepting deposits in an insolvent bank while knowing it to be insolvent.

O. M. Young, an official of the defunct Farmers and Mechanics State bank of Bowman, charged with the same offense, is returning voluntarily from California, according to Mark H. Amundson, state's attorney of Bowman county.

"WICKEDEST TOWN" IS REFORMING

Oil Men's Love for Dancing Brings Cromwell's Transformation

Cromwell, Okla., Oct. 30.—Cromwell, paradise of the oil field huskies, is being cleaned up.

State investigators call it America's wickedest town.

Old Bill Tilghman, now 71 years old, who back in 1896 broke up the Bealin-Balden gang and has been raising Cain ever since in the oil fields, wields the scrubbing brush.

In this town of 300 persons, state agents claim they found wide-open gambling, 200 dope peddlers, many dance halls in which young girls danced for 5 cents a dance to the tune of weird jazz music and 50 blind pigs in which corn whiskey and "choo" beer were sold.

Hijackers, bootleggers and suddenly rich oil men played for high stakes around the tables in the club-house.

The noise of pianos and moaning saxophones rose above the subdued roar of the oil derricks banking the mushroom town while oil huskies scratched over the rough pine floors with the dancing girls.

One out of every three houses in town was a house of ill fame, state investigators contend.

Mrs. Mabel Bassett, state commissioner of charities and correction, and Claud Conally, state commissioner of labor, visited this town and made these charges.

But things have changed. And the oil huskies passion for dancing has brought about the transformation.

There were not enough girls to go

WHEN THE CHILL SHOOK P. W.

This is a most unusual photograph of the Prince of Wales. It was taken at Montreal where he became chilled while riding and was ordered to remain indoors a day, all engagements being canceled. The wear and tear of his present tour seemed to be telling on the prince when this photograph was made.

around, for there were 50 men to every woman in Cromwell, so the dance hall men began importing dancers from the larger cities of the southwest. Dozens of girls were obtained from Tulsa, Oklahoma, City and Kansas City, it is alleged.

Suspecting a white slave ring, state officials began their investigations. One man was arrested in Tulsa in the act of getting two young girls out of the city.

But the investigation failed to reveal any white slave ring. It did, though, bring to light the wickedness of Oklahoma's "Tia Juana."

Governor Trapp sent Mrs. Bassett and Conally down to look the town over. Judge George C. Crump of Hollenville got busy, too.

The investigators found "conditions deplorable." Girls under 18 had been brought in. A boy of 8 was caught peddling dope.

A number of arrests were made. Judge Crump marched a batch of the lawbreakers on foot to Wewoka, for trial, tying them to a 60-foot chain, with a deputy sheriff on each end.

Federal officers also stepped in, drying up the town and breaking up the narcotic traffic.

Then the governor and Judge Crump backed by the business men, decided to hire Bill Tilghman as town marshal.

Though Bill is along in years he is just as "hard" as he was in his palmy days, the officials say.

Bill has closed up the saloons, a lot of the dance halls, and put the dope sellers on the run. In one week he and Deputy Sheriff Aldrich unhooked 65 of the dancing girls out of town.

But Bill says he needs a lot more help if his cleanup is going to be successful.

One of Bill's best volunteer assistants—and you can take Bill's word for it—is J. E. Murphy, vice president of the Cromwell Chamber of Commerce, member of the Board of Health, chairman of the school committee, proprietor of the Murphy dance hall, and manager of the "Murphy Dancing Girls."

RED GERMANY IMPOSSIBLE

Dawes Plan Has Given Germany First Opportunity To Pay

Minneapolis, Oct. 30.—Charles G. Dawes did a good job when he worked out the Dawes plan, and the plan itself, "a businessman's remedy for a business illness," was the only thing which could have solved Germany's problems, Roger M. C. Day, manager of the Berlin office of the Dayton Company, said in Minneapolis today.

A prisoner in Germany throughout the World War, because he was a British subject, Mr. Day has watched conditions change in Germany through 12 years of connection with the buying organization. He said today that:

The Dawes plan gives Germany her first opportunity to pay, and her first knowledge of how much must be paid. Its authors got at the bottom of conditions and worked out the only concrete way to alleviate Germany's troubles.

The immediate effect of increased credits, made possible by the plan, will act perhaps momentarily to stiffen prices, but the general price trend on the continent is downward.

There is no earthly possibility of Germany ever going bolshevik. It is foreign to German nature. There is no chance of any fusion between Germany and Russia.

"German factories all through the inflation period were busy," he said. "They were selling in dollars, while their overhead was in marks. So they could keep going. The inflation made artificial profits, but all the mark profits went back into the plants, not into the banks, because the manufacturers wanted to realize on the marks which otherwise would have been worthless."

"Germany was always a price proposition. They cannot sell on a basis of style and chic. Now they are working toward a 10 hour day, and that will mean a further reduction in prices."

Investigation Being Conducted by Authorities of British Columbia

Vancouver, B. C. Oct. 30.—Peter Veregin, head of the Doukhobor colony of British Columbia, who was killed with five other persons in an explosion on a train of the Canadian Pacific railway between Nelson and Grand Forks, B. C., came to Canada from exile in Siberia in 1903, to lead a Doukhobor colony in Saskatchewan province.

The five dead were: J. L. Machie, member of the British Columbia legislature for Grand Forks; Harry Bishop, of Nelson an amateur hockey player, and three unidentified persons, one a woman.

Ten persons were injured. The explosion happened shortly after 1 o'clock this morning while the train was on its way here. The terrific blast blew bodies out of the passenger car. It was believed at first that a tank of illuminating gas under the coach exploded but an investigation showed, according to officials of the Canadian Pacific, that the explosion was caused by high explosives in the car.

D. C. Coleman, vice president of the western lines of the company at Winnipeg, Man., said "the explosion was caused by some human agency within the car, either intentionally or accidentally."

A special train which carried provincial police, company officials and Doukhobors to the scene of the wreck, was to take Veregin's body to the Doukhobor colony at Brilliant, B. C.

Police continued investigation tonight of rumors that the explosion might have been a plot to destroy the Doukhobor leader.

Veregin was born in Trans-Caucasia in 1850.

SUGAR TARIFF IS IMPORTANT TO N. DAKOTA

Means Much If Sugar Beet Industry Is to Be Built Up, Says Manufacturer

WHAT MAY HAPPEN

Washington, Oct. 30.—Minnesota and North Dakota are in a position at this time to become the field of one of the greatest developments of the sugar-beet industry in America. One sugar factory already started at East Grand Forks, another definitely planned for Fargo or Moorhead, these are merely the beginnings of a wonderful new deal for the spring-wheat farmers of the Northwest.

Not alone to the Red River Valley is this promised development confined. It spreads far east and west of that favored region. A representative of a great Colorado sugar company was in this section recently, and said that there was a greater area available for sugar beets than was supplying ten or twelve factories in his state. With new factories established in this northern region, the overload on the Chaska and Mason City factories will be relieved, permitting a still greater expansion of the industry in central and southern Minnesota as well.

It all depends upon the coming presidential election and the sugar tariff. The Republican party stands upon the principle of a protective tariff for the domestic sugar-beet industry. Senator LaFollette has aligned himself with the Democrats in demanding a reduction of the present tariff rates.

If the LaFollette-Democratic play of tariff reduction or free sugar should come, as it would if Coolidge is not reelected, there will be no new development work and the great benefit of sugar beets to the farmers of this region will end before it has begun.

These are not idle words written for political effect. They are the words of W. L. Douglas, president of the Minnesota Sugar Company, which is financing the new factory at East Grand Forks. Mr. Douglas says:

"It is purely a matter of business, not politics, with us. We can not invest our money in a business that may be ruined by the removal of tariff protection, or that can be legislated out of existence by an irresponsible government. If the election on November 4 assures us that our business will be protected against foreign competition, we will put forth every effort to have the new factory at East Grand Forks ready for the 1925 crop."

If the election goes the other way, all work that has been started there will have to stop. We will return every cent of the subscriptions received from farmers and business men in the Valley, pocket our loss on the work already done, and wait another four years for more favorable conditions to enter into an investment of this character and magnitude."

Without adequate tariff protection, new development in the sugar-beet industry is impossible. Our domestic beet growers and sugar manufacturers can not otherwise compete with the cheaper sugar produced in Cuba, from which most of our foreign imports come. The present Republican tariff rate on Cuban sugar is one and three-quarters cents per pound. Under the last Democratic tariff the rate was one cent per pound, with provision for ultimate free sugar. Only the war prevented free sugar becoming a reality. Senator LaFollette evidently stands with the Democrats on the tariff issue.

Sugar beets open up to large areas of Minnesota and North Dakota the greatest promise of any crop the farmers can grow. Not only is it one of the most stable and profitable crops in itself, but it cleans and improves the land and leaves it in condition for immense yields of grain to follow. As a rotation crop with spring wheat, the combination can not be excelled.

USE SAND TO BREAK UP FOGS FOR AIRPLANES

Extensive Experiments Are Being Conducted by Army Air Service

Washington, Oct. 30.—Extensive experiments in the destruction of fogs and clouds by the use of electrified sand are to be carried out, under government supervision, at Bolling field. Army airplanes equipped with the device patented by Dr. L. Francis Warren of Harvard university have been detailed exclusively to that work and daily flights are to be made during the next six weeks to determine both the peace and war value in connection with aviation.

The two aviators who conducted the attack yesterday obtained a fair "bang" despite the extreme height of the clouds over the field. A group of officers and civilians from the ground could follow without difficulty, cutting off of cups of penicillin of cloud and its subsequent disintegration. Larger masses were crisscrossed with lanes through which the sun's rays shone to accelerate evaporation.

Dr. Warren described the work at Bolling field as a "mere continuation of the invariably successful experiment of the past three years."

"We have had nothing happen in the past three years," he asserted, "to make us change our claims or our minds. We base our work on the assumption that visible forms of moisture in the air, like mists, fogs, clouds, etc., are a form of colloidal suspension in gases and that they should be governed by the same general laws that prevail in colloidal action in liquids and solids."

"We fill the sandpans on the planes with 120 mesh silica sand. The planes being equipped for charging the sand, either positively or negatively by the turn of a lever. The sand impinging upon charging plates or falling through charging nozzles and being scattered by the air, driven back by the plane propeller. When a cloud is found to have a positive charge, we scattered negatively charged particles at the extreme top; when it is found to have a negative charge we scatter positively charged particles at the top; and when it is found without any charge we first charge it as we like and then bring it down by again scattering the opposite charge particles, etc."

"Commercial rainmaking now lies within the grasp of man, and he can employ to this end one of nature's cheapest commodities, namely, common grain silica, at a cost of about $3 per ton, which, outside of maintaining the equipment and operating the planes, will be the only charge."

The judgment of most informed men with whom we discussed the matter, that this unit should be operated at least part time as soon as possible so that the machinery could be tested, a sales organization developed, the product advertised and a partial market created, before the mill should be run to full capacity. There was no question but that there was a wiser course than to have waited until the testing of the machinery, the building of an organization, and the finding of a market, till the whole mill was complete and ready for business.

Securing General Manager
Then came the task of securing a general manager, and months were spent in correspondence, investigations, and interviews until finally we secured the services of Mr. C. E. Austin. He had extensive and successful experience in managing mills and government elevators in Canada and had the reputation of being honest and efficient. It has never been suggested that naming either the head miller, the elevator superintendent or the general manager, policies entered in the slightest degree. We had confidence in Mr. Austin, but even with his experience, losses the first year would be inevitable and that mistakes would be made by any man who might be put in charge of this difficult venture. That seems, unfortunately, both human and inevitable. But it was also the feeling of the industrial commission and of the new board of managers that we ought to profit by experience so that in the future management of the project such losses might be eliminated. The opposition press has harped upon certain alleged differences of opinion between Mr. Austin and the board of managers. There is little cause for criticism there. It was merely such a difference as would be likely to arise in any business. The board of managers in their anxiety to stop the heavy losses and to make a success of the enterprise, felt that Mr. Austin was not reorganizing his force and strengthening the weak spots in his organization and business as quickly as they deemed desirable and possible, that is all. With the passing of the weeks, the suggested changes have been made, however, and the interest of the taxpayers safeguarded wherever possible. The business is now progressing as nicely as can reasonably be expected and hope and expect that before long the mill and elevator will be able to pay operating expenses and at least a

Interests. Much has been added to these duties and responsibilities in recent years. Aside from the mill and elevator, therefore, their official duties are so heavy and require the full time and powers of the men elected to these offices. Furthermore, none of these men are elected because of any special knowledge of the milling business; yet this business is technical and complex. It is more important that they should be qualified for the other duties of their office which must still be regarded as the main duties. The result is that no industrial commission can reasonably be expected to give to the milling enterprise the counsel and direction which the size and importance of the business demands.

Selection of Board
"In the selection of the board of managers, however, you can secure men who know more about the milling, elevator, and grain business, who can give them time to a study of it; you can appoint them from the territory, easily and cheaply accessible to Grand Forks; and you can find men who have no other public duties to perform and who can give the necessary time to the management of this business. There is no question but that the ideal way of conducting this business is by a board of managers acting as a board of directors and doing their business through the general manager and the other officers selected for the enterprise. Now when we have harmony between the general manager and the board in charge of the institution, the best possible results can and will be obtained."

Experience shows that milling in the Northwest is becoming less profitable and that the big milling concerns find they can make more money by concentrating most of their milling at Buffalo where, because of the cheap power, lake transportation, and the nearness of the great consuming centers, they are able to make larger profits. Since only a small share of the product of our mill is likely to be used in North Dakota, we must sell the balance in competition with the flour that is produced under the more favorable conditions at Buffalo and other points. We in North Dakota have the advantage of lower freight rates, the best wheat in the world is being sold here and therefore making a product that is second to none. To offset this advantage, the other plants enjoy many advantages. As compared with practically all of the plants of the Northwest, the North Dakota mill and elevator, contracted for and built when construction costs were exceedingly high, costs more per barrel of daily production than other northwestern mills, and necessitates greater revenue to pay the interest on the additional bonds. With an interest charge of $229,500 each year and a necessary depreciation charge of $80,000 per year to be added to the operating cost, the hands-on is great indeed. The mill at Buffalo, and many others, have the advantage of water power, which is much cheaper, of lower freight rates, of being located near the great consuming centers, and also near the supply of soft wheat, which fact enables them to secure a cheaper mill mix and thus to sell cheaper, or make more money, than a mill located in North Dakota can possibly do.

"While the losses have been considerable, the progress has been in the right direction. During the period ending July 31, 1923, operating expense was 49 cents per barrel. Selling expense was 33 cents per barrel. General expense was 13 cents per barrel. Or a total of 95 cents per barrel, while during the period from August 1, 1923, to March 31, 1924, the operating expense was 31 cents per barrel. Selling expense was 30 cents per barrel. General expense was 12 cents per barrel. Or a total of 73 cents per barrel, showing a reduction of 22 cents per barrel or 23 percent in the cost of running the business, manufacturing the flour, and selling the product."

Drake Mill's Failure
"The mill at Drake under the management of the former administration proved a disastrous venture. Though the cost of the original mill and additions was only about $25,000, the loss on operation in a couple of years amounted to $86,253.50 and their own auditing firm, the Equitable Audit Company, said in their 1921 report that it was out of the question to make such a small profit. It was on our hands, however, and so we decided that we would exercise every possible economy and give the enterprise efficient management in the hope that we might be able to make running expenses and prevent additional heavy losses. During the first year, to our great surprise, we made $6,772.13 over and above running expenses, but in 1923 in the face of adverse milling conditions throughout the country and the keen competition of the splendid product of the Grand Forks mill, we suffered a loss of $12,923.04. We found ourselves with much accumulated stock that the local market had been unable to sell. The board of managers, acting under authority of the law, advertised for bids for the mill but did not receive any bid in proper form or in such amount that they felt warranted in accepting it. So, to prevent additional losses, the mill at Drake has been closed. The board of managers are trying to dispose of the accumulated products as fast as possible, hoping that before long we may be able to sell the mill itself to some miller who, by giving it his personal attention and reducing his force to the minimum, may be able to make a living out of it."

SO. AMERICAN STUDENTS ARE HARD WORKERS

Student at N. D. Agricultural College Says They Study Hard There

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 30. No recitation, no roll call! That is the ideal college as dreamed of by American college students. In North America that dream does not reach reality but in South America it does, according to Atalvia Cuneo, a student from Argentina republic who is now attending the North Dakota Agricultural college. His two brothers are also attending the college and a fourth brother was Spanish instructor at the college last year. Although the Argentine colleges do not take roll call nor do the professors there require recitations from their pupils, Mr. Cuneo insists that students there work harder than do students in this country. "More book study and memory work is required there than here," he said. The courses in the South American universities consist entirely of lectures and consultations with the instructors, ending in the spring with one final written examination. While students are not required to attend classes, nearly all are attended in preparation for that dread exam.

"Colleges in this country are more practical than those in Argentina," Mr. Cuneo says. "I came to the North Dakota Agricultural college so that I could get a more practical education than I could get at home."

Mr. Cuneo mentioned the comparative absence of student government in the North American colleges. In Argentina, he explained, the members of each university are divided into three groups; those who have not yet completed two years of work, those who have completed the two years, and the instructors. The last two groups choose representatives on a national federation of students which has control of the government of the universities. All schools in Argentina are supported by the government, he reports.

GARAGE MAN IS ROBBED

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 30.—Peace officers of several states are on the lookout for Frank Falkner, who is charged by the Cass county sheriff's office with highway robbery. Victor Morrison, garage owner at Hunter, was robbed of $210 in cash and a Ford coupe about 9 last evening. He accuses Falkner of the crime. As Morrison was driving home from his garage last evening in the coupe, he was halted by a man in a dark suit, who stepped out of the car, As he stepped over the head with a blunt instrument. He sagged to the ground but did not lose consciousness at once but claims he recognized the assailant as Falkner, while the latter was searching his pockets for the money, which Morrison says Falkner knew his employer had on his person. A few minutes later Morrison was picked up by a passerby and brought to his home, where he soon regained consciousness. Investigation revealed that Falkner was missing.

WILL BLOW WHISTLE ON NOVEMBER 4 TO REMIND VOTERS TO GO TO POLLS

Fargo plans, as a part of the campaign to get out a full vote on November 4, to have a whistle blow every hour during the day to remind people that they should vote. The registration in Fargo is the heaviest in many years.

The following communication is being sent out by Mrs. Fred P. Mann of Devils Lake, a member from North Dakota, the national Republican committee. It is directed to the women of the state urging them to get out the vote in the towns, villages and rural precincts:

Mrs. F. P. Mann, national committee woman, wants to know: If you—"Mrs. Republican Housewife"—have offered yourself to the leader of the Republican party in your town for service? If not, do it today. If you—"Mrs. County Leader"—have organized down to the smallest unit and have found a "key" woman in every club, fraternal and church group to get out the vote? If not, do it today.

If you county, town and village leaders have arranged for street meetings with good speakers to talk on the candidates and issues and have taken necessary steps to insure the ringing of the church, court-house, school and fire bells on election day, November 4, to call citizens out to vote? If not, do it today. If you city and county chairmen—have called upon the superintendent of your schools and the principal to ask them and that of

Charge Misuse of Mails in Second District Campaign

R. W. Lavelle, in charge of La Follette headquarters here, announced today that he had received a telephone call from Seth Richardson, United States District Attorney at Fargo, stating that a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Logan Powell of Jamestown on a charge of misuse of the mails.

Fargo made the complaint to Mr. Richardson, he said, alleging that the government rank of Congressman Will R. Wood of Indiana had been used by Powell in sending out literature in the Second Congressional district campaign. Mr. Powell is in the Statehouse in independent headquarters.

Fargo was informed, he said, that Powell would go to Fargo voluntarily.

USE SAND TO BREAK UP FOGS FOR AIRPLANES

Extensive Experiments Are Being Conducted by Army Air Service

Washington, Oct. 30.—Extensive experiments in the destruction of fogs and clouds by the use of electric sand are to be carried out under government supervision, at Bolling field. Army airplanes equipped with the device patented by Dr. L. Francis Warren of Harvard university have been detailed exclusively to that work and daily flights are to be made during the next six weeks to determine both the peace and war value in connection with aviation.

The two aviators who conducted the attack yesterday obtained a fair "bug" despite the extreme height of the clouds over the field. A group of officers and civilians from the ground could follow without difficulty by cutting off a cape or peninsula of cloud and its subsequent disintegration. Larger masses were crisscrossed with lanes through which the sun's rays shone to accelerate evaporation.

Dr. Warren described the work at Bolling field as a mere continuation of the invariably successful experiment of the past three years.

"We have had nothing happen in the past three years," he asserted, "to make us change our claims or our minds. We base our work on the assumption that visible forms of moisture in the air, like mists, fogs, clouds, etc., when it is found to be suspended in gasses and that they should be governed by the same general laws that prevail in colloidal action in liquids and solids.

"We fill the sandbanks on the planes with 120 mesh silica sand. The planes being equipped for charging the sand either positively or negatively by the turn of a lever. The sand impinging upon charging plates or falling through charging nozzles and being scattered by the air, driven back by the plane propeller. When a cloud is found to have a positive charge, we scatter negatively charged particles at the extreme top, when it is found to have a negative charge we scatter positively charged particles at the top; and when it is found without any charge we first charge it as we like and then bring it down by again scattering the opposite charge particles, etc.

"Commercial rainmaking now lies within the grasp of man, and he can employ this end one of nature's cheapest commodities, namely, common grain silica, at a cost of about $3 per ton, which, outside of maintaining the equipment and operating the planes, will be the only charge.

"Two of the larger planes would be quite sufficient to entirely squelch a dense fog, covering 117 square miles or more (an area equal to that of the city of London) or a fog covering the city, and harbor of New York. The London Chamber of Commerce, has estimated the cost of the city of each 24 hour dense fog at 1,000,000 pounds sterling, or about $5,000,000."

The judgment of most informed men with whom we discussed the matter, that this unit should be operated at least part time as soon as possible so that the machinery could be tested, a sales organization developed, the product advertised and a partial market created, before the mill should be running to full capacity. There can be no question but that this was a wiser course than to have waited with the testing of the machinery, the building of an organization, and the finding of a market, till the whole mill was complete and ready for business.

Securing General Manager.
Then came the task of securing the general manager, and months were spent in correspondence, investigations, and interviews until finally we secured the services of Mr. C. E. Austin. He had extensive and successful experience in managing mills and government work in Canada and had the reputation of being honest and efficient. It has never been suggested that naming either the head miller, the elevator superintendent or the general manager, politics entered in the slightest degree. We had confidence in Mr. Austin, but felt that even with his experience, and the losses the first year would be inevitable and that mistakes would undoubtedly also be made by him as they would be by any man who might be put in charge of this difficult venture. That seems, unfortunately, both human and inevitable. But it was also the feeling of the industrial commission and of the new board of managers that we ought to profit by experience so that in the future management of the project such losses might be eliminated.

The opposition press has harped upon certain alleged differences of opinion between Mr. Austin and the board of managers. There is little cause for criticism there. It was merely such a difference as would be likely to arise in any business. The board of managers in their anxiety to stop the heavy losses and to make a success of the enterprise, felt that Mr. Austin was not reorganizing his force and strengthening the weak spots in his organization and business as quickly as they deemed desirable and possible, that is all. With the passing of the weeks, the suggested changes have been made, however, and the interest of the taxpayers safeguarded wherever possible. The business is now progressing as nicely as can reasonably be expected and I hope and expect that before long the mill and elevator will be able to pay operating expenses and at least a portion of the bond interest, so that additional loss may be avoided.

"The League candidate for governor says that he is going to take the mill out of politics. Anyone familiar with the facts will know how ridiculous that statement. It is as much out of politics now as it is possible for a state-owned and operated industry to be.

"If Mr. Sorlie means that the people in charge of the mill are mixing in politics, it is certainly not on the independent side.

Denies Political Intent.
When the industrial commission with the cooperation of the mill and elevator committee of the Commercial Club at Grand Forks, after a long search, were able to secure a superintendent of the mill, superintendent of the elevator and a general manager, we found that only outside of the state could we secure men of the wide and successful experience we deemed necessary. Each one of the three, when he came into the state of North Dakota, had no interest in our factional fights, knew nothing about North Dakota politics except in a very general way, but knew the milling and elevator business thoroughly. These men were then given full authority to hire and fire, and informed by the industrial commission that our sole desire was that they should have experience in this line of business should build an efficient organization inside and out, and that the mill and elevator business should be run on the basis of the wide and successful experience we deemed necessary. The business is now progressing as nicely as can reasonably be expected and I hope and expect that before long the mill and elevator will be able to pay operating expenses and at least a

"The statement of opposition papers that a board of managers should not have been created, is based on ignorance or malice. The industrial commission does not have the time to give the management of this enterprise needed. The business is located three hundred miles from the state capital. The duties of the governor, attorney general, and commissioner of agriculture and labor have always been many and important; they serve on many boards, having control of vast and important state interests. Much has been added to these duties and responsibilities in recent years. Aside from the mill and elevator, therefore, their official duties are heavy and require the full time and powers of the men elected to these offices. Furthermore, none of these men are elected because of any special knowledge of the milling business; yet this business is technical and complex. It is more important that they should be qualified for the other duties of their office which must still be regarded as the main duties. The result is that no industrial commission can reasonably be expected to give to the milling enterprise the counsel and direction which the size and importance of the business demands.

Selection of Board.
In the selection of the board of managers, however, you can secure men who know more about the milling, elevator, and grain business; who can give their time to a study of it; you can appoint them from the territory easily and cheaply accessible to Grand Forks; and you can find men who have no other public duties to perform and who can give the necessary time to the management of this business. There is no question but that the ideal way of conducting this business is by a board of managers acting as a board of directors and doing their business through the general manager and the other officers selected for the enterprise. Now when we have harmony between the general manager and the board in charge of the institution, the best possible results can and will be obtained.

Experience shows that milling in the Northwest is becoming less profitable and that the big milling concerns find they can make more money by concentrating more of their milling at Buffalo where, because of the cheap power, lake transportation, and the nearness of the great consuming centers, they are able to make larger profits. Since only a small share of the product of our mill is likely to be used in North Dakota, we must sell the balance in competition with the flour that is produced under the more favorable conditions at Buffalo and other points. We in North Dakota have the advantage of being located where the best wheat in the world is being raised and therefore making a product that is second to none. To offset this advantage, the other plants enjoy many advantages. As compared with practically all of the plants of the Northwest, the North Dakota mill and elevator, contracted for and built when construction costs were exceedingly high, costs more per barrel of daily production than other western mills, and necessitates greater revenue to pay the interest on the additional bonds. With an interest charge of $225,500 each year and a necessary depreciation charge of $80,000 per year to be added to the operating cost, the handicap is not indeed. Then, the mills at Buffalo, and many others, have the advantage of water power, which is much cheaper, of lower freight rates, of being located near the great consuming centers, and also near the supply of soft wheats, which factor enables them to secure a cheaper mix and thus to sell cheaper, or make more money, than a mill located in North Dakota can possibly do.

"While the losses have been considerable, the progress has been in the right direction. During the period ending July 31, 1923, Operating expense was 49 cents per barrel.
Selling expense was 33 cents per barrel.
General expense was 13 cents per barrel.

Or a total of 95 cents per barrel, while during the period from August 1, 1923, to March 31, 1924, the Operating expense was 31 cents per barrel.
Selling expense was 30 cents per barrel.
General expense was 12 cents per barrel.

Or a total of 73 cents per barrel, showing a reduction of 22 cents per barrel or 23 percent in the cost of running the business, manufacturing the flour, and selling the product.

Drake Mill's Failure.
The mill at Drake under the management of the former administration proved a disastrous venture. Though the cost of the original mill and additions was only about $250,000, the loss on operation in a couple of years amounted to $80,253.50 and their own auditing firm, the Equitable Audit Company, said in their 1921 report that it was out of the question to make such a small project pay. It was on our hands, however, and we decided that we would exercise every possible economy and give the enterprise efficient management in the hope that we might be able to make running expenses and prevent additional heavy losses. During the first year, to our great surprise, we made $6,773.13, but in 1923 in the face of adverse milling conditions throughout the country and the keen competition of the splendid product of the Grand Forks mill, we suffered a loss of $12,923.04 and found ourselves with much accumulated stock that the local management had been unable to sell. The board of managers, acting under authority of law, advertised for bids for the mill but did not receive any bid in proper form or in such amount that they felt warranted in accepting it. So, to prevent additional losses, the mill at Drake has been closed. The board of managers are trying to dispose of the accumulated products as fast as possible, hoping that before long we may be able to sell the mill itself to some miller who, by giving it his personal attention and reducing his force to the minimum, may be able to make a living out of it."

SO. AMERICAN STUDENTS ARE HARD WORKERS

Student at N. D. Agricultural College Says They Study Hard There
Fargo, N. D., Oct. 30.—No recitations, no roll call! That is the ideal college as dreamed of by American college students. In North America that dream does not reach reality; but in South America it does, according to Atalvia Cuneo, a student from Argentina republic who is now attending the North Dakota Agricultural college. His two brothers are also attending the college and a fourth brother was Spanish instructor at the college last year. Although the Argentine colleges do not take roll call nor do the professors there require recitations from their pupils Mr. Cuneo insists that students there work harder than do students in this country. "More book study and memory work is required there than here," he said. The courses in the South American universities consist entirely of lectures and consultations with the instructors, ending in the spring with one final written examination. While students are not required to attend classes, nearly all are attended in preparation for that dreaded final.

"Colleges in this country are more practical than they are in Argentina," Mr. Cuneo says. "I came to the North Dakota Agricultural college so that I could get a more practical education than I could get at home."

Mr. Cuneo mentioned the comparative absence of student government in the North American colleges. In Argentina, he explained, the members of each university are divided into three groups: those who have not yet completed two years of work, those who have completed the two years, and the instructors. The last two groups choose representatives on a national federation of students which has control of the government of the universities. At schools in Argentina are supported by the government, he reports.

31,000 SHEEP DELIVERED

Minneapolis, Oct. 30.—Thirty-one thousand sheep are grazing today on farms of the Northwest as a result of the Agricultural Credit Corporation efforts to speed up diversified farming. M. O. Grangard, vice-president in charge of the mixed farming program, announced on his return from Montana where he supervised the purchase and shipment of the animals.

GARAGE MAN IS ROBBED

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 30.—Peace officers of several states are on the lookout for Frank Falkner, who is charged by the Cass county sheriff's office with highway robbery.
Victor Morrison, garage owner at Hunter, was robbed of $210 in cash and a Ford coupe about 9 last evening. He accuses Falkner of the crime.
As Morrison was driving home from his garage last evening in the coupe, he was hailed by a man to stop. As he stopped, he was struck over the head with a blunt instrument. He sagged to the ground but did not lose consciousness at once but claims he recognized the assailant as Falkner, while the latter was searching his pockets for the money, which Morrison says Falkner knew his employer had on his person.
A few minutes later Morrison was picked up by a passerby and brought to his home, where he soon regained consciousness. Investigation revealed that Falkner was missing.

WILL BLOW WHISTLE ON NOVEMBER 4 TO REMIND VOTERS TO GO TO POLLS

Fargo plans, as a part of the campaign to get out a full vote on November 4, to have a whistle blown every hour during the day to remind people that they should vote. The registration in Fargo is the heaviest in many years.

The following communication is being sent out by Mrs. Fred P. Mann of Devils Lake, a member from North Dakota of the national Republican committee. It is directed to the women of the state urging them to get out the vote in the towns, villages and rural precincts:

Mrs. F. P. Mann, national committee woman, wants to know: If you—"Mrs. Republican Housewife"—have offered yourself to the leadership of the Republican party in your town for service? If not, do it today. If you—"Mrs. County Leader"—have organized down to the smallest unit and have found a "key" woman in every club, fraternal and church group to get out the vote? If not, do it today.

If you—county, town and village leaders—have arranged for street meetings with good speakers to talk on the candidates and issues and have taken necessary steps to insure the ringing of the church, court-house, school and fire bells on election day November 4, to call citizens out to vote? If not, do it today.

If you—city and county chairmen—have called upon the superintendents of your schools and the principals to ask their aid and that of

ISSUE WARRANT FOR ARREST

Charge Misuse of Mails in Second District Campaign
R. W. Frazier, in charge of LaFollette headquarters here, announced today that he had received a telephone call from Seth Richardson, United States District Attorney at Fargo, stating that a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Logan Powell of Jamestown on a charge of misuse of the mails.

Frazier made the complaint to Mr. Richardson, he said, alleging that the government rank of Congressman Will R. Wood of Indiana had been used by Powell in sending out literature in the Second Congressional District campaign. Mr. Powell is in the Statesman County Independent headquarters.

Frazier was informed, he said, that Powell would go to Fargo voluntarily.

MANY CHINESE DESTITUTE

Worst Floods Since 1890 Devastate Land
New York, Oct. 30.—Recent floods in north China were the worst since 1890 with many towns still surrounded by lakes, Wm. Mather, Presbyterian missionary in the flooded region, has reported to the Presbyterian board of missions here. Large areas of farming lands were flooded to a depth of 10 to 15 feet, he reported, and it will be impossible to till the soil for two or three years. A great number of people are destitute.

Mr. Shaft pointed out to the commission that the device retails at a cost of less than one-fourth of what each globe so protected costs, the cost of the protectors being $35 per hundred.

Student at N. D. Agricultural College Says They Study Hard There
Fargo, N. D., Oct. 30.—No recitations, no roll call! That is the ideal college as dreamed of by American college students. ## LUTHERANS TO CELEBRATE

Chicago, Oct. 29.—The fourth biennial convention of the United Lutheran church of America, on the eve of the 40th anniversary of the protestant reformation with a plea from the church president for "open mindedness."

On Sunday, Lutheran churches throughout the country will commemorate the mailing of Martin Luther's thesis to the doors of the University of Wittenberg, Oct. 31, 1517. The convention continued to make church history up to the time of closing.

It approved the program which has been started of co-operation with other Lutheran bodies through the National Lutheran council in Europe relief and other foreign work. The council representing 17 Lutheran bodies, including the United Lutheran church in America, has expended seven and a half million dollars for rehabilitation in 32 European countries, and additional sums for relief of orphans in foreign mission fields. The convention voted full co-operation.

MANCHURIANS IN ADVANCE

Overcome Opposition of Chihli Troops
Mukden, Oct. 30.—A communique issued here yesterday says that after they had captured Langchow, southwest of Shanhaikwan, the Manchurians advanced toward Chinwangtao, while two brigades were executing a flanking attack on Changli between Chinwangtao and Langchow.

The communique also says the Chihli troops used poison gas for the first time. The Manchurians, however, using gas masks, remained quiet until the Chihlis approached them when they opened fire with machine guns, inflicting severe casualties on the enemy.

The political situation in North Dakota has improved so rapidly during the past few weeks that we have little to ask for now," declares Harrison Garnett, republican national committeeman. "Coolidge sentiment has developed at a tremendous pace in every corner of the state. President Coolidge will receive a greater vote than we ever expected, carrying North Dakota by a handsome majority."

Mr. Garnett has devoted his entire attention during the past several weeks to personal contact with every district in the state. He has watched an indifferent attitude develop into one of remarkable enthusiasm for President Coolidge. The work of the present administration, through the Dawes committee, in straightening out the European entanglements and restoring that part of the world for business relationship has proven a factor in the people of North Dakota, and the farmers in particular, cannot easily overlook, Mr. Garnett finds.

Twenty-five attorneys from Minot and other towns of Ward county, at a meeting in Minot endorsed C. J. Frazier of that city for justice of the supreme court of North Dakota.

The attorneys took the action on the ground that the northwestern section of the state is entitled to a judge on the supreme bench.

FOR EX-SERVICE MEN

The Republicans since they have come in control of Congress in April, 1919, have appropriated $364,128,000 for hospital work and hospital construction for ex-service men. Disbursements to disabled ex-service men or their dependents are being made at the rate of $800,000 a day. The record would indicate that Congress has not been niggardly in providing for the disabled men.

The Republicans, too, in answer to the charges made against President Coolidge because of his veto of the soldiers' bonus act, in an effort to win votes of former service men, point out that ex-service men are direct beneficiaries of the era of business management in governmental affairs installed by Republicans with such marked success in the reduction of taxes.

The Republicans are responsible for the Sweet Act, which coordinated all the federal agencies dealing with ex-service men in the Veterans Bureau. Since this Bureau was created there has been a gradual reform in the handling of matters dealing with the ex-service men. In spite of setbacks, the Veterans Bureau has risen to a place of high esteem in the minds of the ex-service men. The records of the Bureau show that of each dollar appropriated 28 cents goes for vocational training, 26 cents for compensation, 25 cents for insurance, 12 cents for medical and hospital services, six per cent for salaries, including those of 27,000 employees of the Bureau, and three per cent covers other administrative expense.

The Veterans Bureau was on the defensive at the start. Now it is able to claim that the United States today has the most up-to-date, scientific and humanitarian system of hospitalization in existence.

BROADWAY

Some of the shows on and around Broadway, New York, are "pulling raw stuff" this season, unusually so.

There has a national significance, for Broadway shows are supported mainly by Americans from the interior who have sallied eastward for a good time. And, too, Broadway shows reflect what the producers think the public will want later, out on the road. The shows, on tour, will be tamed down. People stand for more on a trip than in the home town. Ed Howe once said that any girl will flirt as the train is pulling out.

NEW YORK

Railroads figure, 76 million tourists and business visitors enter and leave New York City in a year. A lot of duplications, of course, some making the trip many times.

The Grand Canyon and similar natural marvels await in the west. But the majority of people prefer Manhattan, which in the last analysis is little more than a very orderly collection of bricks. Man's vanity is flattered when he inspects his own work. Man built New York. He didn't have a hand in the Grand Canyon.

"EXPERT" OPINION

Speaking of things that excited the public a few years ago: Going back about 10 years in newspaper files, we find experts of the N. Y. Produce Exchange claiming that the high price of meat was due to corn-feeding our drunkards instead of hogs. They figured that three-fifths of the corn crop in those days was consumed by distilleries and breweries.

The liquor is gone, and meat is higher than ever. So much for the transitory opinions of "expert economists."

SUBWAY

Passengers who enter or leave the Times Square subway station in New York now total more in a year than the entire population of the United States.

The subway makes the super-city possible. Without it, the traffic confusion would become a deadlock. Whether the subway in this capacity is a gain or a loss, is debatable. But it is undoubtedly the one and only traffic solution for all larger cities.

LOVE

Tender caresses and fervent vows of courtship days do not always lead to the expected.

In Paris, jail doors are installed between the rooms where husbands and wives wait until their divorce cases are called by the judge. The steel bars are found necessary to prevent the ex-lovers from getting at each other with claw and nail. The most important decision in life is marriage. "Marry in haste, repent at leisure."

ADMIRABLE

Meet Abraham Herschkowitz, New York patriot. He is so determined to vote this year that he made a trip on a stretcher from the hospital, so he could register.

Good citizenship like this is enough to make a vote-slacker blush. If you are as patriotic in peacetime as in war, you will vote without fail. A failure to vote is, in effect, a ballot cast in favor of slipshod government and high taxes.

FOUNDATION OF HEALTH

"More deaths are caused by improper ventilation of train coaches and waiting rooms than by train accidents."

That was the decision, 10 years ago, by a committee of railroad experts. It was true then. It is true now. Fresh air is the foundation of health, whether traveling or at home.

REDUCING ARMY

France is reducing her army. By Nov. 8, she will have less than 500,000 soldiers under arms. Some interpret this as a waning of French militarism. Again, it may be only a French decision that fighting power is shifting from foot and mounted soldiers to airplane forces.

A consumer and his money are soon parted.

THE KISS IN REVOLUTION

(New York World)
It was inevitable that sooner or later the Soviet scientists would invite disaster. They have withstood economic pressure from without, triumphed over starvation, crushed the allied armies of intervention, defied nations and even nature up to now—but at length they face defeat.
"No more kisses," goes forth the ukase. "It's insubstantial."
"No more hand-shaking—it communicates disease," showing how filthy these Reds must be.
That settles it. The spell is broken. There are some things in nature that cannot be defeated even by the Soviet. All went well with the Reds of Paris until Robespierre deprived Tallien of his mistress—and the next scene showed Robespierre bleeding on a table, and the lady kissing her lover.
A kiss killed the Terror in Paris; prohibition of the kiss may do as much in Moscow.

SUNLIGHT ON FOOD

(Current History)
Dr. Harry Steenbock of the University of Wisconsin has discovered that foods given a sun bath are as effective in preventing and curing rickets as foods rich in the antirachitic vitamin. As a result of experiments he has found that merely placing foods in the sunlight will endow it with growth-promoting properties supposed to be possessed only by foods rich in vitamins, in spite of the fact that "irradiated" or "illuminated" foods may contain no vitamins before exposure to the light.

Hundreds of rats were used experimentally. Rickets was produced in these animals by first feeding rations known to produce this disease. Then they were cured by feeding them exactly the same ration which had been exposed to sunlight.
For man these findings have particular value because prominent medical authorities have found that in northern climates 40 to 50 per cent of the children in industrial areas show signs of rickets. Such a condition, though seldom fatal, leads to more or less permanent abnormalities such as bowed legs, deformed chests and poor teeth, due to the inability of the child to assimilate lime.

By exposing them to sunlight, cereal grains, breakfast foods, salad oils, cooking fats, oleomargarines and modified infant foods may all be made protective agents without affecting their taste, and apparently this property is not destroyed by aging. In the past cod-liver oil has been the standard remedy for rickets, but as a result of Dr. Steenbock's experiments it may become possible to dispense with this remedy, which has been tolerated rather than relished. Olive oil and lard, as well as other plant and animal fats, can be made as active as cod-liver oil by Dr. Steenbock's method.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The king of Yum Yum Land was hungry.
He had had breakfast at eight o'clock; a large cantaloupe, a plate of ham and eggs, a dish of oiled oats and cream, five pieces of toast and marmalade and four cups of coffee.

For luncheon at one he had had a plate of soup, a fish, a whole fried chicken, two helpings of mashed potatoes, six ears of corn, tomato and cucumber and asparagus and sweet-pepper salad, and a plate of ice cream with crushed cherries all over it and sprinkled with nuts, and I don't know what all.

Now it was three o'clock and he was hungry.
"I'm hungry," he said to his prime minister. "I'm very hungry. In fact, I'm half starved."
The prime minister said to the lord high chancellor, "The king's hungry. He's very hungry. In fact he's half starved. You'd better do something. Please see to it at once."
The lord chamberlain said to the lord mayor that the king was hungry and all the rest of it.

And at four o'clock he reached the ears of the cook who was just sending in a tray of crumpets and tea to his Majesty the King.
"Crumpets and tea?" he said in dismay, "will never do for a starving king. It's four hours to dinner and I haven't a thing in the house. What shall I do? I'll lose my job as cook if I don't find something wonderful at once."

Just then a peddler passed the kitchen door calling out, "Fine wares to sell! Fine wares to sell! Please come and buy! Fine wares to sell!"
"Be off with you!" cried the cook. "I've troubles enough as it is. His Majesty is starving to death and here I am with nothing but crumpets and tea in the house and four hours till dinner."
"Oh, but look!" whined the beggar. "I have the very thing you want. An old thin fork and a teapot of the same stuff."
"Be off!" cried the cook. "An old bent fork that looks as though it had been used for pitching hay! And an old teakettle that looks as though the highest office it had ever performed was to melt the ice on the butcher's pavement. Be off, I say!"
"Not so fast! Not so fast!" said the beggar. "These things are not to be judged by appearances. They will save you work and I only want to do you a favor. Hide me in the palace and they are yours for nothing. Both are magic and will bring you any kind of meat or drink by merely saying a charm. To the teapot say:

Well, Well, Still They Come

The Tangle

With Jack and Karl came dad's lawyer, and we all assembled in the library to hear the will read. At this time Alice made her first appearance among us since we had returned from the funeral. Poor child, she looked as though she had had a serious illness, and I felt so sorry for her that I went up and put my arms around her.

I haven't told you, Ruth, that we had quite a disturbance when Karl and Alice first arrived, and Jack told her that father had made him his executor and manager of the plant. Of course, after everything else, the quarrel got back to the pearls, and I gave them back to her and told Karl, before Jack and Alice, that I could not keep my promise to him; that I had never been happy with them, and I could never again wear them, knowing how Alice felt about them.

So you see I have gotten rid of at least one thing that might bring me discord and unhappiness but I'm somewhat afraid that I've only passed them with all their dirt and dirt over to Alice and Karl; for Karl reproved Alice before us all, and it nearly broke her heart.
She was very subdued through the long legal announcement made by the lawyer in reading the will. It was exactly as Jack had told us except that it was couched in legal phrases. Dad gave to mother for life the income from his entire real estate; and a third of the income from his personal property and investments as long as she should live. The income from the other two-thirds is to be divided equally between Alice, myself, and little John, and John is made executor without bond.

Both of us started when this item was read, and Jack turned pale, for dad had not told him that part of his request. I thought at first Alice was going to remonstrate, but Karl put his hand gently over hers and she was silent.

At the death of mother, her share is to be divided equally between Alice and me.

It's a strange thing, Ruth dear, how destiny has worked out the fact of little Jack. I am exceedingly glad that my father loved the boy well enough to insure his education and start his life, whatever anyone else might do for him. Each day, now, as I know that another child is coming to me, my love grows greater for the boy I chose. I love him for my husband's sake; I love him in spite of my husband's sin. I love him because I chose him out of the world of little homeless and motherless ones, and I think I can say that that is as great a love as a mother has even for a child that is hers because she bore it.

Oh, I know a great many people will think I am crazy to say this, but nevertheless each day I find that it is true in my case. I am eagerly waiting until my other child is born to see if nature will make any difference between the child of my body and the child of my choice. There is much more I want to tell you, Ruth. There is much to be settled, of course, about the shop and other things. However, I will not come back with John immediately, as I hate to leave mother here alone. Alice at this time seems to be much absorbed in her own unhappiness and sorrow to be of much comfort to her. However, I am going to have a talk with Jack before he returns, and then I will write you. Until then, remember dear, you are my best friend.

LESLIE.

THE ORIENTALS NEVER KISS

By Albert Apple

Chinese and Japanese do not kiss. But American movies will start this delectable custom in the orient, predicts Lillian Eichler in her new book, "The Customs of Mankind."

That's plausible, and probable, even though it does strain the imagination to picture the emotionless poker-faced Chinks practicing the art of osculation.

Lombroso long since claimed that kissing is an accidental custom exclusive to America and Europe. However, we never could shake off a notion that even in China the lovers must instinctively kiss in private. Scientists say not.

In this dry and desolate age, when the punch bowl is legally taboo and marriages are supposed to be celebrated by drinking tea, strawberry pop or ice cream sodas, it is a comfort to many to look back to the golden age when—

In ancient northern Europe married couples drank mead—a high-power wine made from fermented honey, for 30 days after the marriage ceremony. This came to be known as the "honey month." That is the origin of the word "honeymoon," writes Lillian Eichler.

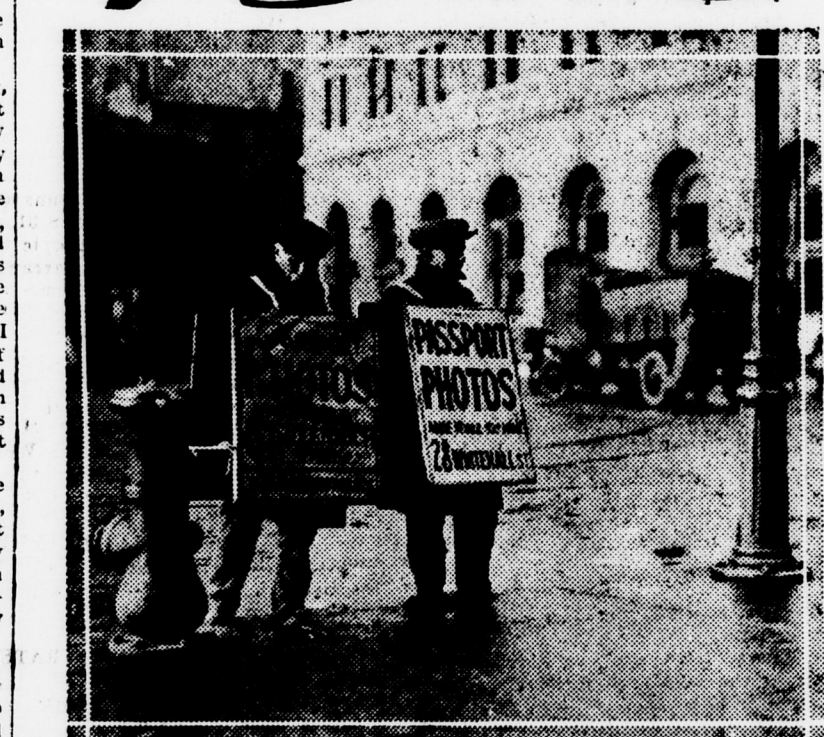

The bridegroom got his name from the custom of his having to wait at table on his bride—taking the place of the regular servant, a groom. This symbolized devotion and submission to his loved one.

That famed institution, the big wedding cake, had a very practical origin. A French cook observed the custom of serving individual little cakes to the hundreds at a wedding would be more convenient if the cakes were concentrated into one mass.

The marriage ceremony in ancient days was often fantastic. There are primitive districts of the world that still preserve the system by which a man and woman were considered married as soon as they ate out of the same dish.

Rice is thrown after the departing married couples because of its being the olden symbol of productivity.

Six hundred years ago in France, Lillian Eichler records, "It was considered a lucky thing to win the bride's garter, and everyone rushed for it at the conclusion of the ceremony. Brides wisely left one garter dangling where it could easily be reached, but nevertheless they were often hurt in the scuffle. So some wise bride conceived the idea of throwing her bridal bouquet."

Many of the summer hoboes return to New York for the winter because of the wealth of odd jobs there. One of the favorites for down-and-outers is the sandwich man job.

New York, Oct. 30.—As days grow shorter and nights longer business in Broadway's gilded palaces pick up. Two new cabarets will have a cover charge of $5 a person. Profits of these night jazz joints average about $2500 a week. Some of the more successful stage for profit of $7500 a week. The Silver Slipper until it was padlocked by prohibition agents, averaged a profit of $10,000 a week and is reported to have made $12,000 one week.

The cabarets do not have to have a large patronage to make large profits. Every check represents a profit of 80 per cent.
Many well-known stage people, especially vaudeville performers, are engaged as entertainers. Some of them have entirely severed their connection with the stage for this work. Their pay often runs into four figures.

Jimmie Hussey, comedian, is reported to receive $2000 a week as a master of ceremonies in a cabaret just opened.
The two latest bits of catchy slang in Gotham are, "And I don't mean maybe," and "You don't know the night I spent!" You can say either one of them on almost any occasion.

Barney Oldfield in his palmist day could have broken no speed records along the roads about New York on Sunday. For miles in all directions roads are blocked with machines creeping along, fenders to fenders. Bob Dorman, the eminent correspondent, photographer, airplane scout and driving demon reports that it took him exactly one hour to travel one mile on the Philadelphia road last Sunday.

Along Greenwich street, near Cortland, a radio market has been established. Competition in the sale of variometers, condensers and other spare parts is very keen. As a result these articles are displayed in tubs and wash basins along the sidewalk, much in the same manner as vegetables are displayed in market places. The prospective buyer goes from one basket to another selecting radio parts as a good housewife proceeds from market stall to market stall selecting cantaloupes.

Years ago three women in New York were known as the world's greatest diamond thieves. The leader of the three fell in love with a rich man and married him. She is now a respected member of society in a western city. One of the others is dead and the third is a charwoman. A friend of mine who knows New York's underworld inside-out tells me that the one who married the rich man still has a bushel of gems.

FABLES ON HEALTH

WATCH EYES

Watch the children's eyes during their school days!

This was an admonition that children of Anytown were given, and told to carry it home to their parents.

Preservation of the eyesight begins at home and while many schools in large communities have installed clinics, the parents should attempt to keep a personal watch. Here are things to guard against:

Don't let the child read in dark corners of the house.

Look out for flickering or glaring lights.

Notice the size of the type in the book and see that it is not too small for the child's vision.

Watch the eyelids for inflammation such as "pink-eye," as this can be spread through the common use of a towel or face cloth.

BURKE BOARD PUTS COUNTY AGENT QUESTION ON BALLOT

Bowbells, N. D., Oct. 29.—Burke county voters on Nov. 4 will ballot on whether to continue the levy for agricultural extension work. Meeting in special session, at the order of the district court, to investigate the sufficiency of signatures on petitions asking a vote, the county commission ordered that the proposition be placed upon the ballots.

Previously the board had rejected the petitions on the ground that they did not bear sufficient signatures, the law requiring at least 15 percent of the real estate taxpayers as signers.

This year's expenditures for radio parts are expected to reach $250,000.

Teachers Guests Of Rotarians

The Teachers of the Bismarck Schools were the merry guests of Bismarck Rotary yesterday evening at a Ladies' Night dinner held in the McKenzie dining room.

After the empty coffee cups had been pushed aside, "Bob" Simpson opened the program by auctioning off the "bachelor bloc". Because of the large and exuberant throng, some of the bids seemed excessive. John Hoffman was next introduced as a new member in Rotary by J. L. Bell, with a few wise words of welcome from Chairman V. J. LaRose. At this point, S. E. Heigerson and Dr. H. A. Brandes gave their Semite initiation and Dr. Brandes sang a parody solo.

A. H. Fort of H. J. Duemeland fell unaccountably flat in his endeavor to entice song from a soulless quartet, the guests took over the program and put on a mock Rotary meeting with zest and wit that will long remain a goal for Rotary.

Miss Elizabeth Jones, as Dr. LaRose, presided and ruled with iron hand and invested thumb. The teachers apparently had, first hand information as to the habits and customs of the male Rotarians. The grievance committee functioned, new members were introduced, a birthday celebrated and a special edition of the Buffalo Horn read. The "gout bloc" J. P. Jackson, J. L. Bell, "Bob" Webb, and P. J. Meyer, usual bore, took the brunt of the attack of keen points and sharper wit. The "bachelor bloc", charged with grave misdemeanors, were sentenced by Miss Jones to mend their ways in thirty days or to pay alimony to the Bismarck school teachers until reformation was accomplished. After the teachers had been roundly applauded for their contribution, C. L. Young spoke briefly on "Ethics". He said that his address included no reference to J. P. Jackson, "Bob" Webb, J. L. Bell, or P. J. Meyer, as it was a serious talk on a worth while subject. He traced man's gropings through the ages and the gradual growth of ethical conscience. The Golden Rule, he stated, was the foundation of all religions and the basis of all worth while philosophies. He said that where Ethics was once considered a science it was now an art and in every day practice. One comparatively recent step he mentioned was the adoption of codes of ethics by practically all trades, professions, and businesses and their insistence on compliance with the principle laid down in these codes.

L. F. Crawford, Curator of the State Historical Society, concluded the program with a short talk on "The Background of Theodore Roosevelt in North Dakota". He told of many men of the Badlands country in Roosevelt's time emphasizing their youth and stressing heavily the color of Montana in its early days. The guests in addition to the teachers included Mr. Crawford, Miss Ricker, Assistant Secretary of Bismarck Rotary, and Mr. Gould, Rotarian from Mandan.

THE APPLE TREE MAN

(Florence Borne)

There's a tummy little fellow,
In a suit of red and yellow,
Laying up in our old apple tree,
Be the weather wet or shiny,
He is never sad or whiny,
But as jolly, and as happy as can be.

Oh, his heart is bright and cheery,
And he never is grown weary,
Tho' his lonesome attentions, I won't,
As he touches up the places,
Where the sun can't reach the faces,
Of the apples through thin leaves, lanky and lean.

How the birds and bees all love him,
And blue skies smile above him,
While the wind rocks him to sleep at night,
But the robin, singing so sweetly,
Puts his dreams to flight completely,
At the first red tintings of the morning light.

He's a funny, little fellow,
And his heart is just as mellow,
As an apple's heart could ever be,
But he always stays in hiding,
And a secret I'm confiding,
I believe he is afraid of you and me.

AT THE MOVIES

CAPITOL
A new high record for daring horsemanship is being set by Buck Jones, the popular western in "The Desert Outlaw," the newest William Fox offering which will star Buck at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow for a run of two days.

"Handcuffed horsemanship" is the sensational trick riding novelt, which Buck Jones flashes before the audience eye. It's the greatest riding of Buck's long hard-riding career—a stellar performance. And there's still a greater thrill in store when Buck, still handcuffed, rides the brake-beam of a railroad car, and at the risk of his life, ingeniously frees himself from the handcuffs.

THE ELTINGE
Mary Roberts Rinehart's Saturday Evening Post story, "The Altar on the Hill," is the foundation of "The Silent Watcher," the picture with Glenn Hunter and Bessie Love, which will be shown at the Eltinge theatre Friday and Saturday.

The story deals with the efforts of Joe Roberts, a young secretary to John Steele, lawyer and politician, to protect his employer from scandal, to assume the burden of responsibility for a murder he knew nothing of, and to hold the faith of his wife. Those who have viewed the photoplay are of the opinion that it is one of the most brilliant displays of dramatic achievement in some time and that Hunter and Miss Love demonstrate extraordinary ability in the interpretation of the principal characters.

Holart Bosworth, as Senator John Steele, and Alma Bennett, as Lily Elliott, a musical comedy soubrette, head the supporting cast which includes such other well known players as Gertrude Astor, DeWitt Jennings, Lionel Belmore, George Nichols, Aggie Herring and Brandon Hurst.

Camphor Acts Quick

A Teacher's Job

would be lighter and brighter if boys and girls were properly fed at home. Whole wheat cereal, milk and fruits are Nature's food for growing children. Shredded Wheat is the whole wheat in its most easily digested form. Better than mushy porridges for children because they have to chew it, and that means sound teeth and healthy gums. Contains all the bran of the whole wheat grain, also the mineral salts for building bone and brain. Two Biscuits with hot milk make a warm, nourishing meal for a few cents.

HOW TO CLEAR WATER

If the water for laundry purposes looks muddy, clear it by stirring a teaspoonful each of alum and borax dissolved in a little hot water, using this proportion for each gallon of water. Then let it stand until the mud has settled to the bottom and siphon the clear water into another receptacle with a short length of garden hose.

THE APPLE TREE MAN

(Florence Borner)

There's a funny, little fellow,
In a suit of red and yellow,
Living up in our old apple tree;
Be the weather wet or shiny,
He is never sad or whiny,
But as jolly, and as happy as can be.

Oh, his heart is bright and cheery,
And he never has grown weary,
Tho' he's lonesome oftentimes, I wene;
As he touches up the places,
Where the sun can't reach the faces,
Of the apples through their heavy, leafy screen.

How the birds and bees all love him,
And blue skies smile above him,
While the wind rocks him to sleep at night;
But the robin, singing sweetly,
Puts his dreams to flight completely,
At the first red tappings of the morning light.

He's a funny, little fellow,
And his heart is just as mellow,
As an apple's heart could ever be;
But he always stays in hiding,
And a secret I'm confiding,
I believe he is afraid of you and me.

AT THE MOVIES

CAPITOL
A new high record for daring horsemanship is hung up by Buck Jones, the popular western in "The Desert Outlaw", the newest William Fox offering which will star Buck at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow for a run of two days.

"Handcuffed horsemanship" is the sensational trick riding novelty which Buck Jones flashes before the astounded eye. It's the greatest riding of Buck's long hard-riding career—a stellar performance. And there's still a greater thrill in store when Buck, still handcuffed, rides the brake-beam of a railroad car, and at the risk of his life, ingeniously frees himself from the handcuffs.

THE ELLING
Mary Roberts Rinehart's Saturday Evening Post story, "The Altar on the Hill," is the foundation of "The Silent Watcher," the picture with Glenn Hunter and Bessie Love, which will be shown at the Elling theatre Friday and Saturday.

The story deals with the efforts of Joe Roberts, a young secretary to John Steele, lawyer and politician, to protect his employer from scandal, to assume the burden of responsibility for a murder he knew nothing of, and to hold the faith of his wife. Those who have viewed the photoplay are of the opinion that it is one of the most brilliant displays of dramatic achievement in some time and that Hunter and Miss Love demonstrate

PARENTS AND TEACHERS IN COUNTY UNITE

Parent-Teacher organizations are being effected many places in Burleigh county, according to Miss Madge Roney, county superintendent of schools. A campaign is being conducted in the state by the national Parent-Teacher organization, and interest is being shown throughout this country.

Every teacher in Burleigh county either has a teacher's certificate or has applied for one. Miss Roney said, after completing an inspection trip and making a report on the schools. This means they have either passed the required examinations or are high school graduates and have taken the normal training course required.

Thirteen graduates of Bismarck High School's class of 1924 are teaching in the county.

The Canfield school, where there was a smallpox scare, is open.

would be lighter and brighter if boys and girls were properly fed at home. Whole wheat cereal, milk and fruits are Nature's food for growing children. Shredded Wheat is the whole wheat in its most easily digested form. Better than mushy porridges for children because they have to chew it, and that means sound teeth and healthy gums. Contains all the bran of the whole wheat grain, also the mineral salts for building bone and brain. Two Biscuits with hot milk make a warm, nourishing meal for a few cents.

If the water for laundry purposes looks muddy, clear it by stirring a teaspoonful each of alum and borax dissolved in a little hot water, using this proportion for each gallon of water. Then let it stand until the mud has settled to the bottom and siphon the clear water into another receptacle with a short length of garden hose.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER

FOR EX-SERVICE MEN
The Republicans since they have come in control of Congress in April, 1919, have appropriated $264,128,000 for hospital work and hospital construction for ex-service men. Disbursements to disabled ex-service men or their dependents are being made at the rate of $800,000 a day. The record would indicate that Congress has not been niggardly in providing for the disabled men.

The Republicans, too, in answer to the charges made against President Coolidge because of his veto of the soldiers' bonus act, in an effort to win votes of former service men, point out that ex-service men are direct beneficiaries of the era of business management in governmental affairs installed by Republicans with such marked success in the reduction of taxes.

The Republicans are responsible for the Sweet Act, which coordinated all the federal agencies dealing with ex-service men in the Veterans Bureau. Since this Bureau was created there has been a gradual reform in the handling of matters dealing with the ex-service men. In spite of setbacks, the Veterans Bureau has risen to a place of high esteem in the minds of the ex-service men. The records of the Bureau show that of each dollar appropriated 28 cents goes for vocational training, 26 cents for compensation, 25 cents for insurance, 12 cents for medical and hospital services, six per cent for salaries, including those of 27,000 employees of the Bureau, and three per cent covers other administrative expense.

The Veterans Bureau was on the defensive at the start. Now it is able to claim that the United States today has the most up-to-date, scientific and humanitarian system of hospitalization in existence.

BROADWAY
Some of the shows on and around Broadway, New York, are "pulling raw stuff" this season, unusually so.

There is a national significance, for Broadway shows are supported mainly by Americans from the interior who have sallied eastward for a good time. And, too, Broadway shows reflect what the producers think the public will want later, out on the road. The shows, on tour, will be tamed down. People stand for more on a trip than in the home town. Ed Howe once said that any girl will flirt as the train is pulling out.

NEW YORK
Railroads figure 76 million tourists and business visitors enter and leave New York City in a year. A lot of duplications, of course, some making the trip many times.
The Grand Canyon and similar natural marvels await in the west. But the majority of people prefer Manhattan, which in the last analysis is little more than a very orderly collection of bricks. Man's vanity is flattered when he inspects his own work. Man built New York. He didn't have a hand in the Grand Canyon.

"EXPERT" OPINION
Speaking of things that excited the public a few years ago: Going back about 10 years in newspaper files, we find experts of the N. Y. Produce Exchange claiming that the high price of meat was due to corn-feeding our drunkards instead of hogs. They figured that three-fifths of the corn crop in those days was consumed by distilleries and breweries.

The liquor is gone, and meat is higher than ever. So much for the transitory opinions of "expert economists."

SUBWAY
Passengers who enter or leave the Times Square subway station in New York now total more in a year than the entire population of the United States.
The subway makes the super-city possible. Without it, the traffic confusion would become a deadlock. Whether the subway in this capacity is a gain or a loss, is debatable. But it is undoubtedly the one and only traffic solution for all larger cities.

LOVE
Tender caresses and fervent vows of courtship days do not always lead to the expected.

In Paris, jail doors are installed between the rooms where husbands and wives wait until their divorce cases are called by the judge. The steel bars are found necessary to prevent the ex-lovers from getting at each other with claw and nail. The most important decision in life is marriage. "Marry in haste, repent at leisure."

ADMIRABLE
Meet Abraham Hershkowitz, New York patriot. He is so determined to vote this year that he made a trip on a stretcher from the hospital, so he could register.
Good citizenship like this is enough to make a vote-slacker blush. If you are as patriotic in peacetime as in war, you will vote without fail. A failure to vote is, in effect, a ballot cast in favor of slipshod government and high taxes.

FOUNDATION OF HEALTH
More deaths are caused by improper ventilation of train coaches and waiting rooms than by train accidents.
That was the decision, 10 years ago, by a committee of railroad experts. It was true then. It is true now. Fresh air is the foundation of health, whether traveling or at home.

REDUCING ARMY
France is reducing her army. By Nov. 8, she will have less than 500,000 soldiers under arms. Some interpret this as a waning of French militarism. Again, it may be only a French decision that fighting power is shifting from foot and mounted soldiers to airplane forces.

A consumer and his money are soon parted.

THE KISS IN REVOLUTION

(New York World)
It was inevitable that sooner or later the Soviet scientists would invent disaster. They have withstood economic pressure from without, triumphed over starvation, crushed the allied armies of intervention—defiant nations and even nature up to now—but at length they face defeat.

"No more kisses," goes forth the ukase. "It's insubstantial."
"No more hand-shaking—it communicates disease"—showing how filthy these Reds must be.
That settles it. The spell is broken. There are some things in nature that cannot be defeated even by the Soviet. All went well with the Reds of Paris until Robespierre deprived Tallien of his mistress—and the next scene showed Robespierre bleeding on a table, and the lady kissing her lover.

A kiss killed the Terror in Paris; prohibition of the kiss may do as much in Moscow.

SUNLIGHT ON FOOD

(Current History)
Dr. Harry Steenbock of the University of Wisconsin has discovered that foods given a sun bath are as effective in preventing and curing rickets as foods rich in the antirachitic vitamin. As a result of experiments he has found that merely placing foods in the sunlight will endow it with growth-promoting properties supposed to be possessed only by foods rich in vitamins. In spite of the fact that "irradiated" or "illuminated" foods may contain no vitamins before exposure to the light.

Hundreds of rats were used experimentally. Rickets was produced in these animals by first feeding rations known to produce this disease. Then they were cured by feeding them exactly the same ration which had been exposed to sunlight.

For man these findings have particular value because prominent medical authorities have found that in northern climates 49 to 90 per cent of the children in industrial areas show signs of rickets. Such a condition, though not fatal, leads to more or less permanent abnormalities such as bowed legs, deformed chests and poor teeth, due to the inability of the child to assimilate lime.

By exposing them to sunlight, cereal grains, breakfast foods, salad oils, cooking fats, oleomargarines and modified infant foods may be made protective agents without affecting their taste, and apparently this property is not destroyed by aging. In the past cod-liver oil has been the standard remedy for rickets, but as a result of Dr. Steenbock's experiments it may become possible to dispense with this remedy, which has been tolerated rather than relished. Olive oil and lard, as well as other plant and animal fats, can be made as active as cod-liver oil by Dr. Steenbock's method.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The king of Yum Yum Land was hungry.

He had had breakfast at eight o'clock; a large cantaloupe, a plate of ham and eggs, a dish of rolled oats and cream, five pieces of toast and marmalade and four cups of coffee.

For luncheon at one he had had a plate of soup, a fish, a whole fried chicken, two halves of mashed potatoes, six ears of corn, tomato and cucumber and asparagus and sweet-pepper salad, and a plate of ice cream with crushed cherries all over it and sprinkled with nuts, and I don't know what all.

Now it was three o'clock and he was hungry.
"I'm hungry," he said to his prime minister. "I'm very hungry. In fact, I'm half starved."
The prime minister said to the king, "Your highness, 'The king' is hungry. He's very hungry. In fact, he's half starved. You'd better do something. Please see to it at once."

The lord chamberlain said to the king, "The king is hungry and the king is half starved. And at four o'clock it reached the ears of the cook who was just sending in a tray of crumpets and tea to his Majesty the King."

"Crumpets and tea?" he said in dismay. "I'll never do for a starving king. In four hours to dinner and I haven't a thing in the house. What shall I do? I'll lose my job as cook if I don't find something wonderful at once."

Just then a peddler passed the kitchen door calling out, "Fine wares to sell! Fine wares to sell! Please come and buy! Fine wares to sell!"
"Be off with you!" cried the cook. "I've troubles enough as it is. His Majesty is starving to death and here I am with nothing but crumpets and tea in the house and four hours till dinner."

"Oh, but look!" whined the beggar. "I have the very thing you want. An old thin fork and a teaspoon of the same stuff."
"Be off!" cried the cook. "An old bent fork that looks as though it had been used for pitching hay! And an old teakettle that looks as though the highest office it had ever performed was to melt the ice on the butcher's pavement. Be off, I say!"
"Not so fast!" the peddler said to the beggar. "These things are not to be judged by appearances. They will save you work and I only want to do you a favor. Hide me in the palace and they are yours for nothing. Both are magic and will bring you any kind of meat or drink by merely saying a charm. To the test, pot say:

Well, Well, Still They Come

"Go do your best, go do your worst. Or, tempt, dear, I'll die of thirst."

"To the fork say: 'Oh, magic fork, I'd like a treat. Please see what you can find to eat.'"

"Whatever you wish for as you say these words will be yours at once."

"Eureka!" cried the cook. "My fortune is made."

That was what Mother Goose heard, and that is what she told the twins as they passed them in the sky.

The twins were on their way to Yum Yum Land.

IS THIS YOUR BIRTHDAY

THURSDAY, OCT. 30—You know yourself less than anybody in the world. To err is human, but your kind, genial and cordial relation with others is bound to be your undoing.

Learn to know yourself, and in this way you will be able to read human nature and to know better those about you.

If one is too sensitive and feeling too keenly there will be many heartaches caused by trivialities. You must be more affectionate to those near and dear to you.

The Tangle

With Jack and Karl came dad's lawyer, and we all assembled in the library to hear the will read. At this time Alice made her first appearance among us since we had returned from the funeral. Poor child, she looked as though she had had a serious illness, and I felt so sorry for her that I went up and put my arms around her.

I haven't told you, Ruth, that we had quite a disturbance when Karl and Alice got married, and Jack told her that father had made him his executor and manager of the plant. Of course, after everything else, the quarrel got back to the pearls, and I gave them back to her and told Karl, before Jack and Alice, that I could not keep my promise to him; that I had never been happy with them, and I could never again wear them, knowing how Alice felt about them.

So you see I have gotten rid of at least one thing that might bring me discord and unhappiness, but I'm somewhat afraid that I've only passed them with all their dire import over to Alice and Karl; for Karl reproved Alice before us all, and it nearly broke her heart.

She was very subdued through the long legal announcement made by the lawyer in reading the will. It was exactly as Jack had told us except that it was couched in legal phrases. Dad gave to mother for life the income from his entire real estate; and a third of the income from his personal property and investments as long as she should live. The income from the other two-thirds is to be divided equally between Alice, myself, and little John, and John is made executor without bond.

Both of us started when this item was read, and Jack turned pale, for dad had not told him that part of his request. I thought at first Alice was going to remonstrate, but Karl put his hand gently over hers and she was silent.

At the death of mother, her share is to be divided equally between Alice and me.

It's a strange thing, Ruth, dear, how destiny has worked out the fate of little Jack. I am exceedingly glad that my father loved the boy well enough to insure his education and start his life, whatever anyone else might do for him. Each day, now, as I know that another child is coming to me, my love grows greater for the boy I chose. I love him for my husband's sake; I love him in spite of my husband's sin. I love him because I chose him out of the world of little homeless and motherless ones, and I think I can say that that is as great a love as a mother has even for a child that is hers because she bore it.

Oh, I know a great many people will think I am crazy to say this, but nevertheless such day I find that it is true in my case. I am eagerly waiting until my other child is born to see if nature will make any difference between the child of my body and the child of my choice.

There is much more I want to tell you, Ruth. There is much to be settled, of course, about the shop and other things. However, I will not come back with John immediately, as I hate to leave mother here alone. Alice at this time seems to be much absorbed in her own unhappiness and sorrow to be of much comfort to her. However, I am going to have a talk with Jack before he returns, and then I will write you. Until then, remember dear, you are my best friend.

EVERETT TRUE

—AND IF THERE'S ANYTHING IN THIS WIDE WORLD THAT MAKES ME SORRY IT'S THESE PEOPLE THAT CAN'T OPEN THEIR MOUTHS WITHOUT KNOCKING SOME BODY!

THE ORIENTALS NEVER KISS

By Albert Apple

Chinese and Japanese do not kiss. But American movies will start this delectable custom in the orient, predicts Lillian Eichler in her new book, "The Customs of Mankind."

That's plausible, and probable, even though it does strain the imagination to picture the emotionless poker-faced Chinks practicing the art of osculation.

Lombroso long since claimed that kissing is an accidental custom exclusive to America and Europe. However, we never could shake off a notion that even in China the lovers must instinctively kiss in private. Scientists say not.

In this dry and desolate age, when the punch bowl is legally taboo and marriages are supposed to be celebrated by drinking tea, strawberry pop or ice cream sodas, it is a comfort to many to look back to the golden age when—

In ancient northern Europe married couples drank mead—a high-power wine made from fermented honey, for 30 days after the marriage ceremony. This came to be known as the "honey month." That is the origin of the word "honeymoon," writes Lillian Eichler.

The bridegroom got his name from the custom of his having to wait at table on his bride—taking the place of the regular servant, a groom. This symbolized devotion and submission to his loved one.

That famed institution, the big wedding cake, had a very practical origin. A French cook observed the custom of serving individual little cakes to the hundreds at a wedding would be more convenient if the cakes were concentrated into one mass.

The marriage ceremony in ancient days was often fantastic. There are primitive districts of the world that still preserve the system by which a man and woman were considered married as soon as they ate out of the same dish.

Rice is thrown after the departing married couples because of its being the olden symbol of productivity.

Six hundred years ago in France, Lillian Eichler records, "It was considered a lucky thing to win the bride's garter, and everyone rushed for it at the conclusion of the ceremony. Brides wisely left one garter dangling where it could easily be reached, but nevertheless they were often hurt in the scuffle. So some wise bride conceived the idea of throwing her bridal bouquet."

Many of the summer hoboos return to New York for the winter because of the wealth of odd jobs there. One of the favorites for down-and-outers is the sandwich man job.

New York, Oct. 30.—As days grow shorter and nights longer business in Broadway's gilded palaces pick up. Two new cabarets will have a cover charge of $5 a person. Profits of these night jazz joints average about $2500 a week. Some of the more successful show a profit of $7500 a week. The Silver Slipper until it was nabbed by prohibition agents, averaged profit of $10,000 a week and is reported to have made $12,000 one week.

The cabarets do not have to have a large patronage to make large profits. Every check represents a profit of 80 per cent.

Many well-known stage people, especially vaudeville performers, are engaged as entertainers. Some of them have entirely severed their connection with the stage for this work. Their pay often runs into four figures.

Jimmie Hussey, comedian, is reported to receive $2000 a week as a master of ceremonies in a cabaret just opened.

The two latest bits of catchy slang in Gotham are, "And I don't mean nuyba," and "You don't know the night I spent!" You can say either one of them on almost any occasion.

Barney Oldfield in his palmist day could have broken no speed records along the roads about New York on Sunday. For miles in all directions roads are blocked with machines creeping along, fender to fender. Bob Dorman, the eminent correspondent, photographer, airplane scout and driving demon reports that it took him exactly one hour to travel one mile on the Philadelphia road, last Sunday.

Along Greenwich street, near Cortland, a radio market has been established. Competition in the sale of variometers, condensers and other spare parts is very keen. As a result these articles are displayed in tubs and wash baskets along the sidewalk, much in the same manner as vegetables are displayed in market places. The prospective buyer goes from one basket to another selecting radio parts, as a good housewife proceeds from market stall to market stall selecting cantaloupes.

Years ago three women in New York were known as the world's greatest diamond thieves. The leader of the three fell in love with a rich man and married him. She is now a respected member of society in a western city. One of the others is dead and the third is a charwoman. A friend of mine who knows New York's underworld inside-out tells me that the one who married the rich man still has a bushel of gems.

FABLES ON HEALTH

WATCH EYES

Watch the children's eyes during their school days!

This was an admonition that children of Anytown were given, and told to carry it home to their parents.

Preservation of the eyesight begins at home and while many schools in large communities have installed clinics, the parents should attempt to keep a personal watch.

Here are things to guard against:

Don't let the child read in dark corners of the house.

Look out for flickering or glaring lights.

Notice the size of the type in the book and see that it is not too small for the child's vision.

Watch the eyelids for inflammation such as "pink-eye," as this can be spread through the common use of a towel or face cloth.

proposition be placed upon the ballot.

Previously the board had rejected the petitions on the ground that they did not bear sufficient signatures, the law requiring at least 10 percent of the real estate taxpayers as signers.

This year's expenditures for radio parts are expected to reach $250,000.

Bowbells, N. D., Oct. 29.—Burke county voters on Nov. 4 will ballot on whether to continue the levy for agricultural extension work.

Meeting in special session, at the order of the district court, to investigate the sufficiency of signatures on petitions asking a vote, the county commission ordered that the

GRID DISTRICT STATUS FIXED BY N. D. BOARD

Bismarck to Meet Valley City or Minot, Depending on Outcome of Games

MUST WIN GAME HERE

Bismarck's status in inter-sectional contests, should the "Demons" win the southwestern district football championship, has been fixed by the state athletic board of control, according to information reaching Coach Morrison of the local high school.

If Valley City High beats Wahpeton for the southeastern district title, Bismarck High will play Valley City.

But if Wahpeton beats Valley City, Bismarck High will meet Minot in the semi-finals.

The place of the game in either event probably will be decided by the flip of a coin.

Valley City and Wahpeton will decide the southwestern district championship in a game this week, Fargo having been eliminated by Wahpeton, 12 to 0. Valley City rules the favorite, with a veteran team.

Bismarck High must defeat Dickinson here on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock to win the southwestern district championship. The gloom that has prevailed over Bismarck High has been somewhat lifted, with several injured players improving, and the locals probably will present almost their full strength in the game with Dickinson.

BORLESKE TO LEAVE "AGGIES"

Fargo, Oct. 30.—Stanley Borleske, director of athletics at the North Dakota Agricultural College for the past six years, today announced that he had handed in his resignation, which will go into effect on July 1, 1925. Borleske declared his plans for the future are indefinite.

SEND SPECIAL TO GRID GAME

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 30.—A special train with accommodations for 400 football fans will leave the University of North Dakota at 9 o'clock Saturday morning for Fargo, where the annual grid battle between the Flickertails and North Dakota Aggies will take place. Arrangements for the train were completed recently, according to an announcement made by university athletic authorities. The train will return to Grand Forks Saturday evening.

SPORTS SORTS

Many critics believe Sid Terris of New York will surely be the next lightweight champion.

Jack Dempsey is the most popular heavyweight champion since the days of the immortal John L.

Benny Leonard is more interested in a stage career than continuing as lightweight champion.

Walter Travis, only American ever to win the British amateur, is a retired player in the New York district.

Not only is Chick Evans a remarkable golfer but he is one of the best bond salesmen in the country.

Carl Mays, discarded by the American League, upset the dope pot by winning 20 games for Cincinnati.

Babe Ruth says if Joe Shute of Cleveland had a little more stuff on his fast ball, he would be one of the greatest southpaws in the game.

Ty Cobb believes that Outfielder Manush has finally arrived and that he will hit consistently next year.

Johnny Coulton thinks Jimmy Wilde would have been easy for him if the two had been contemporaries.

Johnny Kilbane is soon to open an immense open-air health camp on shores of Lake Erie.

Speece of Washington throws an underhand ball much after the manner of Carl Mays' subway delivery.

Connie Mack says in "Lefty" Groves, recently purchased from Baltimore, and Fred Heimach he has two of the best southpaws under the big tent.

So far the football season of 1924 has failed to uncover a drop-kicker or place-kicker to compare with some of the point-getters of other days via the toe route.

JUST A "BUILD UP"
Fans are taking interest in the announcement that Firpo and Fred Fulton have been matched for a bout in Madison Square Garden. They see in it merely an attempt to "build up" Firpo for another big money match.

FOOTBALL STARS FAIL IN MAJORS

Few Ball Players Who Also Shine on Gridiron Make Good

BY BILLY EVANS

Does football jinx the college baseball star?

Major league scouts are just about convinced that such is the case. If a scout is favorably impressed by a certain college ball player, he at once makes inquiries as to whether he plays football.

An affirmative reply immediately causes him to lose much interest in said athlete. Only a limited few of the college athletes who have starred on the gridiron as well as the diamond have made good in big league ball.

It seems that football takes something out of the athlete as a ball player. The grid game has a tendency to slow him up in more ways than one.

Football injuries costly.

The chance of injury is also great. Many college players come to the majors bearing the marks of their football careers. Often these injuries make ordinary players out of men who might have starred.

Caster, one of the greatest athletes ever turned out at Notre Dame, failed as a big league pitcher with the Chicago White Sox.

Only a year ago in talking with Coach Rockne of Notre Dame he paid tribute to Castner.

"He was as great an athlete as the best man I ever coached, but lacked Gipp's staying power," Castner was brittle, Gipp an iron man."

Many Grid Stars Fail

Castner, great college pitcher, never had a chance as a big leaguer. He pitched as if shoulder-bound, no doubt the penalty of football injuries.

Michigan's last two centers were Ernie Vick and Jack Blott, both remarkable players, All-American selections.

Versatile athletes, they went big on the diamond as well as gridiron. Both starred as catchers. Branch Rickey took Vick to St. Louis, while Cincinnati signed Blott.

Vick has spent much of his time since Rickey signed him playing with the minor leagues of a higher classification. No doubt he is still the property of St. Louis.

Blott, a great thrower in college, broke his shoulder blade in football and was still suffering from the injury when he reported to Cincinnati. It is said Detroit passed him up because of this.

Football Real Jinx

At the world series I had a talk with Jack Hendricks, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, who says Blott has entirely recovered and is throwing as well as ever. Hendricks looks for him to be a star.

Glenn Killinger, an All-American football player, couldn't make the grade in the majors. Hinkie Haines and Mike Gossella failed with the Yankees.

Hoge Workman, one of the greatest backfield players ever turned out in the Big Ten, met with just ordinary success as a pitcher with the Boston Red Sox.

A football reputation is quite a handicap to the college athlete who aspires to shine in big league baseball. A real jinx.

huddle system is based on the loss of actual playing time in the many conferences that must be held to decide each play.

During the past few weeks a number of leading coaches have had the stop watches on games where one team resorted to the bunch system and the other used the old-time method of calling the signals.

In each case the report has been the same. There is little or no difference in the time consumed. The slight margin of difference, a second or two on each play, favors the huddle system.

Many of the leading coaches are of the opinion that inside of five years every football team will be using the bunch system of calling plays.

The acoustic arrangements of most of the new stadiums are poor. Add to this the shouts of thousands of wildly excited fans and it is easy to see how hard it must be for the players to hear the calling of the signals.

Zupke of Illinois and Wilce of Ohio State, two of the game's greatest coaches, use the huddle system exclusively, because it is surer and eliminates checking of signals.

Another advantage of the huddle system is that it offers an opportunity for a smart player to question the wisdom of the choice of play. Often this feature results in a shifting of tactics, much to the advantage of the team having the ball.

It would occasion no great surprise if several members of the Yankees five-star staff figured in trades during the winter.

There is no reason why a major league player should not be permitted to play exhibition games after the close of the season provided he observe the discipline that is demanded of him during the regular playing season.

At one time there was so much agitation against barnstorming that severe restrictions were placed on the activities of the players after the close of the season.

Of late years the ban has been taken off to a certain extent and the players have been in a position to pick up plenty of soft money until Nov. 1, the official closing of baseball as set by Judge Landis.

However, since the close of the present season, the conduct of several clubs have not been in keeping with the best interests of the game. There may be a reaction against barnstorming as a result.

NORTH DAKOTA GRID CLASSIC ON SATURDAY

University and Agricultural College Will Meet in Fargo Saturday

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 30.—North Dakota's annual football classic will take place Saturday at Dacotah field, Fargo, when the University of North Dakota football team meets the Bisons of the state agricultural college team. This event is the chief attraction for the latter's homecoming day and hundreds of rooters for each team will spur the two elevens to battle for the state championship.

Each team has won one North Central conference game and each has lost two games. The Bisons lost to South Dakota State and Des Moines university while the Flickertails of the university lost to South Dakota university and South Dakota State.

Both teams won their games last week. The Bisons taking 1923 conference champions. Morningside, into camp by a score of 9 to 3, while North Dakota university defeated Nebraska Wesleyan 13 to 7. From the dope on the two teams they appear to be quite evenly matched.

The Aggies have not won from the university on the gridiron for several years, their last win being in 1919 when the Aggies won 7 to 6. With the exception of one year, 1921, only one touchdown has been the deciding difference between the two elevens.

This season the Bisons are determined to upset the dope and stage a win. Their coach, Stanley E. Borleske, gives them an even chance to do it, believing that his team is stronger this year than they have been for some seasons. The 20 to 0 victory over St. Thomas college that had not been defeated in the last 10 starts indicates the team's strength when it gets a fair share of the breaks.

Secret practice will be the rule all week at the Bison camp. Even in the scrimmage with the freshman the secrecy rule will be strictly adhered to.

In the future Messrs. O'Connell and Dolan will have more respect for the advertisement, "No metal can touch you."

When it comes to putting the game on ice, Red Grange, being a reformed ice man, is certainly the logical baby for the job.

It is surprising to learn that Pie Traynor of the Pirates was never an actor in the comic films.

A lot of folks think Coolidge should have saved that sap bucket for Judge Landis at the series.

Like Carpentier, Epinard never won a battle in this country, but unlike Carpentier the French horse laid off the alibi.

Rhythm is everything in football, announces Mr. Zupke of Illinois, and of course you remember the fascinating rhythm of old Germany Schultz!

Chick Evans took his first ride in an airplane the other day. Somehow this sounds as old-fashioned as the Arkansas hermit who came to town and saw a train for the first time.

Ban Johnson says he is going to get to the bottom of the baseball scandal, but the fans are interested mostly in the higher-ups.

It is singular how Mile. Suzanne manages to get over her coughing spells just when the American girls hang up their rackets for the year.

St. Paul and Seattle are getting ready to play a series. Can't something be done to get the boys off the bases by Christmas?

Four Brooklyn players were arrested for rough-housing a hotel in the north-west. And thus the business of dignifying the game goes merrily on.

Sewanee and Alabama football game ended in a free-for-all fist fight. As the poets say, what is so rare and beautiful as the college spirit!

Chick Evans Was Disappointed When He Failed To Bag Them on First Air Trip

By NEA Service

Wichita, Kas., Oct. 28.—Playing here recently in an open championship, Chick Evans, noted amateur golfer, was persuaded to take his first trip in an airplane. (You hardly suspect Chick was that old-fashioned.) Evans explored the clouds for many minutes and was enthusiastic about his experience. "But I didn't bag any eagles or birdies," he lamented.

The Jack o' Lantern

Little Johnnie Smithers, Lying on the ground, Saw a yellow pumpkin, Large, and smooth and round; Quickly as he spied it, Crabbed it on the run, Said with happy chuckle, "Now I'll have some fun."

Then he took the pumpkin, Cut two holes for eyes, Made a nose and added, Mouth of monstrous size; Halloween was coming, Gee! he'd have some fun— Scare the little kiddies, Put them on the run.

So he took the image, Put inside a light, With a sheet around him, Looked an awful fright; Hid down in the alley, Quarter after eight, Heard the children coming, Hadn't long to wait.

"Gosh," they yelled in chorus, "Look there at the spook!" "How their voices trembled, And their bodies shook." Then, up spoke one youngster, Bolder than the rest: "Ain't afraid o' pumpkins, Even when they're drest."

Then he hurried forward, Pulled the sheet away— Saw young Johnnie hiding, Just as plain as day; New poor John feels awful, Wishes he were dead— Everybody calls him "Johnnie Pumpkin Head." —Florence Borner.

WHEAT FALLS EARLY TODAY

Drops During Early Dealings in Chicago

Chicago, Oct. 30.—(By the A. P.) Grain underwent a general decline today during the early dealings.

There was a decided pause in the aggressive buying which was such a powerful factor in hastening corn values and strengthening other commodities.

Wheat opening prices, which ranged from 5-8 to 1-1-8 cents lower, with Dec. $1.43 1-4 to 1-2 and May $1.48 1-2 to 3-4 were followed by a setback that in some cases went nearly two cents under yesterday's finish.

Further losses ensued, rallies failing to hold. Export demand was said to be light, even for deferred shipment. This close was unsettled. The 2-2c net lower, with December $1.41 1-4 to $1.41 1-2 and May $1.47 1-4 to $1.47 1-2.

Peter Norbeck, U.S. Senator From South Dakota, Will Give Help To Leaders Of Republican Campaign

Executives of the Republican National Committee are giving very consideration to the desires and advice of party leaders throughout the country, in handling the numerous problems of the national campaign.

To this end they have named an Advisory Committee composed of thirty-two men and women, high in the party councils and in selected sections of the country.

One of those who is giving the committee his varied services is Senator Peter Norbeck of South Dakota, than whom there are few more sincere and better informed Republicans.

Senator Norbeck was elected from Redfield in 1920 by a substantial majority over both his opponents. He is an astute politician, having had public office for many years before becoming a candidate for the Senate. He was born near Vermillion, Clay County, South Dakota, in 1870 and before he entered politics was a well drilled building company and in 1902 Senator Norbeck was elected to the State Senate and served three terms, being elected to the post of Lieutenant Governor in 1914. In 1916 he was elected Governor, the first native of his state to hold that office, and held that office until his election to the Senate in 1920. He always has been insistent that legislation be devised to benefit the people.

WHEAT FALLS EARLY TODAY

Drops During Early Dealings in Chicago

Chicago, Oct. 30.—(By the A. P.)—Grain underwent a general downturn today during the early dealings. There was a decided pause in the aggressive buying which was such a powerful factor in hoisting corn values and strengthening other cereals.

Wheat opening prices which ranged from 5-8 to 1-1-8 cents lower, with Dec. $1.43 1-4 to 1-2 and May $1.48 1-2 to 3-4 were followed by a setback that in some cases went nearly two cents under yesterday's finish.

Further losses ensued, rallies failing to hold. Export demand was said to be light, even for deferred shipment. This close was unsettled 1-3-4 to 2-5-4 net lower, with December $1.41 1-4 to $1.41 1-4 and May $1.47 1-4 to $1.47 1-4.

John Jones, Typical American, Lives In a Modern World of Iron and Steel

—prising Facts Brought Out In Bethlehem Steel Publication

CABLE dispatches just received in America from scientists who have been excavating the city near Carthage built by one of the Roman emperors around his villa, report evidences of a community life not unlike that in present-day America, yet restrained by a lack of modern metals and startlingly primitive because of a dependence on wood and stone.

This viewpoint has been strikingly illustrated in a publication of the Bethlehem Steel Corp., which follows for a single day the footsteps of John Jones, an average American, as he leads his ordinary life amid the complications and advantages of modern times.

John is living in an age of steel and iron. Wherever he goes and whatever he does he is never out of touch with these metals and much of what he accomplishes is due to their assistance.

He is awakened from sleep on his iron bed with steel springs by a steel alarm clock. He shaves with a steel razor before an iron lavatory covered with porcelain. He puts on trousers with steel suspender buttons and a belt with a steel buckle. His shoes are full of iron nails. His hat trim is kept in shape by a steel wire. His house is nailed with iron and probably supported by steel structural beams. His breakfast is cooked on an iron stove in iron receptacles. His coffee and other foods are in "tin" containers over 98 per cent of which are steel.

His automobile, largely of steel, takes him to the station which has a steel skeleton and he gets into a steel railroad car pulled by a steel engine along steel rails held by steel spikes, and he rides along over steel frogs, switches, bolts, nuts, washers, rivets, and signals.

The farmer's fence as he whizzes by is barbed wire and the farm implements, tools and water tanks he sees on his way are steel. He passes a steel freight train and sees steel ships and tugs in the dock.

He arrives in New York through a steel tunnel, is taken to his office through a steel subway in steel cars, and in elevators with steel plungers or steel cables. Here he sits at a steel typewriter at a steel desk. And later he lunches at a hotel whose monolithic skyscraper structure is made possible by thousands of tons of steel beams.

He carries a knife with steel blades and a case full of steel keys. Practically half of what he sees, and much of what he touches is steel. And yet so common has steel become and so generally used for nearly every purpose that he never thinks of it or of the vast organizations behind its production which since the war have done an about face and are now given over to making commercial products.

A recent survey of the Bethlehem Steel subsidiary companies showed a long list of major products ranging from muck bars to Diesel engines and from motor wheels to toe calks and viaducts.

Executives of the Republican National Committee are giving every consideration to the desires and advice of party leaders throughout the country, in handling the numerous problems of the national campaign.

To this end they have named an Advisory Committee composed of thirty-two men and women high in the party councils, and in selecting them have given representation to all sections of the country.

One of those who is giving the committee his valued services is Senator Peter Norbeck, of South Dakota, than whom there are few more sincere and better informed Republicans.

Senator Norbeck was elected from Redfield in 1920 by a substantial majority over both his

Non-Partisan League and Democratic opponents. He is an astute politician, having held public office for many years before becoming a candidate for the Senate. He was born near Vermillion, Clay County, South Dakota, in 1870 and before he entered politics was a well drilled, building a company held to be the largest of its kind in the West.

In 1909 Senator Norbeck was elected to the State Senate and served there three terms, being elected to the post of Lieutenant Governor in 1914. In 1916 he was elected Governor—the first native of his state to hold that office—and held that office until his election to the Senate in 1920. He always has been insistent that legislation be devised to benefit the people.

GRID DISTRICT STATUS FIXED BY N. D. BOARD

Bismarck to Meet Valley City or Minot, Depending on Outcome of Games

MUST WIN GAME HERE

Bismarck stadium in inter-sectional contests, should the "Demons" win the southeastern district football championship, has been fixed by the state athletic board of control according to information reaching Coach Morrison of the local high school.

If Valley City High beats Wahpeton for the southeastern district title, Bismarck High will play Valley City.

But if Wahpeton beats Valley City, Bismarck High will meet Minot in the semi-finals.

The place of the game in either event probably will be decided by the flip of a coin.

Valley City and Wahpeton will decide the southeastern district championship in a game this week, Fargo having been eliminated by Wahpeton. Valley City rules the favorite, with a veteran team.

Bismarck High must defeat Dickinson here on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock to win the southwestern district championship. The gloom that has prevailed over Bismarck High has been somewhat lifted, with several injured players improving, and the locals probably will present almost their full strength in the game with Dickinson.

BORLESKE TO LEAVE "AGGIES"

Fargo, Oct. 30.—Stanley Borleske, director of athletics at the North Dakota Agricultural college for the past six years, today announced that he had handed in his resignation, which will go into effect on July 1, 1925. Borleske declared his plans for the future are indefinite.

SEND SPECIAL TO GRID GAME

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 30.—A special train with accommodations for 400 football fans will leave the University of North Dakota at 9 o'clock Saturday morning for Fargo, where the annual grid battle between the Flickertails and North Dakota Aggies will take place. Arrangements for the train were completed recently, according to an announcement made by university athletic authorities. The train will return to Grand Forks Saturday evening.

FOOTBALL STARS FAIL IN MAJORS

Few Ball Players Who Also Shine on Gridiron Make Good

BY BILLY EVANS

Does football jinx the college baseball star?

Major league scouts are just about convinced that such is the case.

It is a scout is favorably impressed by a certain college ball player, he at once makes inquiries as to whether he plays football.

An affirmative reply immediately causes him to lose much interest in the athlete.

Only a limited few of the college athletes who have starred on the gridiron as well as the diamond have made good in big league ball.

It seems that football takes some thing out of the athlete as a ball player. The grid game has a tendency to slow him up in more ways than one.

Football Injuries Costly

The chance of injury is also great. Many college players come to the majors bearing the marks of their football careers. Often these injuries make ordinary players out of men who might have starred.

Caster, one of the greatest athletes ever turned out at Notre Dame, did as a big league pitcher with the Chicago White Sox.

Only a year ago in talking with Coach Becker of Notre Dame he paid tribute to Caster.

"He was as great an athlete as George Gipp, who I regard as the best man I ever coached, but lacked a few staying power," Caster was once told. "You are not a man."

Many Grid Stars Fail

Center, great college pitcher, never had a chance as a big leaguer. He pitched as if shoulder-bound, no doubt the penalty of football injuries.

Michigan's last two centers were Ernie Vick and Jack Blott, both remarkable players. All America selections.

Versatile athletes, they went big on the diamond as well as gridiron. Both started as catchers. Branch Rickey took Vick to St. Louis, while Cincinnati signed Blott.

Vick has spent much of his time since Rickey signed him playing with the minor leagues of a higher classification. No doubt he is still the property of St. Louis.

Blott, a great thrower in college, broke his shoulder blade in football and was still suffering from the injury when he reported to Cincinnati. It is said Detroit passed him up because of this.

Football Real Jinx

At the world series I had a talk with Jack Hendricks, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, who says Blott has entirely recovered and is throwing as well as ever. Hendricks looks for him to be a star.

Glenn Killinger, an All-American football player, couldn't make the grade in the majors. Hinkie Haines and Mike Gozella failed with the Yankees.

Hopie Workman, one of the greatest backfield players ever turned out in the Big Ten, met with just ordinary success as a pitcher with the Boston Red Sox.

A football reputation is quite a handicap to the college athlete who aspires to shine in big league baseball. A real jinx.

huddle system is based on the loss of actual playing time in the many conferences that must be held to decide each play.

During the past few weeks a number of leading coaches have had the top watches on games where one team resorted to the hunch system and the other used the old-time method of calling the signals.

In each case the report has been the same. There is little or no difference in the time consumed. The slight margin of difference, a second or two on each play, favors the huddle system.

Many of the leading coaches are of the opinion that inside of five years every football team will be using the hunch system of calling plays.

The acoustic arrangements of most of the new stadiums are poor. Add to this the shouts of thousands of wildly excited fans and it is easy to see how hard it must be for the players to hear the calling of the signals.

Zuppke of Illinois and Wile of Ohio State, two of the game's greatest coaches, use the huddle system exclusively, because it is safer and eliminates checking of signals.

Another advantage of the huddle system is that it offers an opportunity for a smart player to question such a method to decide who would touch the ball.

The huddle or hunch system lacks the thrill that goes with the shouting of a lot of numbers by the players delegated to select the plays.

The calling of the various signals is a warning to the crowd to make ready for action on the part of the athletes.

There is so much thrill to the huddle system, which is merely a whisper of intelligence.

New York, Oct. 30.—Manager Miller Huggins of the New York Yankees is in the market for pitching material.

The more leader admits that he is far from satisfied with his pitching staff. He feels that it needs some new blood to do a comeback and win another pennant.

Southpaw Lennock is a certainty for the coming season. He is one of the most consistent left-handers in the game.

In Walter Heald, who did such good work at the close of last season, Huggins is positive he has picked up a winning right hander.

The condition of Bush and Shawkey is doubtful at best. Both are old timers, no longer able to work out of turn and be effective.

Sam Jones, out of the game most of the year because of illness and injuries, should be O. K. next season. Blott, a great pitcher, is said to be almost satisfied.

It would occasion no great surprise if several members of the Yankees' five-star staff figured in trades during the winter.

NORTH DAKOTA GRID CLASSIC ON SATURDAY

University and Agricultural College Will Meet in Fargo Saturday

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 30.—North Dakota's annual football classic will take place Saturday at Dacotah field, Fargo, when the University of North Dakota football team meets the Bisons of the state agricultural college. This event is the chief attraction for the latter's Homecoming day and hundreds of rooters for each team will spur the two elevens to battle for the state championship.

Each team has won one North Central conference game and each has lost two games. The Bisons lost to North Dakota State and Des Moines university while the Flickertails of the university lost to South Dakota university and South Dakota State.

Both teams won their games last week, the Bisons taking the 1923 conference champions, Morrisling, into camp by a score of 9 to 3, while North Dakota University defeated Nebraska Wesleyan 13 to 7. From the dope on the two teams they appear to be quite evenly matched.

The Aggies have not won from the university on the gridiron for several years, their last win being in 1919 when the Aggies won 7 to 6. With the exception of one year, 1921, only one touchdown has been the deciding difference between the two elevens.

This season the Bisons are determined to upset the dope and stage a win. Their coach, Stanley E. Borleske, gives them an even chance to do it, believing that his team is stronger this year than they have been for some seasons. The 20 to 0 victory over St. Thomas college that had not been defeated in the last 19 starts indicates the team's strength when it gets a fair share of the break.

Secret practice will be the key to the Aggie's Bison camp. Even in the scrimmage with the freshman the secrecy rule will be strictly adhered to.

Ban Johnson says he is going to get to the bottom of the baseball scandal, but the fans are interested mostly in the higher-ups.

It is singular how Mile. Suzanne manages to get over her coughlike spells just when the American girls hang up their rackets for the year.

Little Johnnie Smithers, Lying on the ground, Saw a yellow pumpkin, Large, and smooth and round; Quickly as he spied it, Crabbed it on the run, Said with happy chuckle, "Now I'll have some fun."

Then he took the pumpkin, Cut two holes for eyes, Made a nose and added, Mouth of monstrous size; Hallowe'en was coming, Gee! he'd have some fun—Saw the little kiddies, Put them on the run.

So he took the image, Put inside a light, With a sheet around him, Looked an awful fright; Hid down in the alley, Quarter after eight, Heard the children coming, Hadn't long to wait.

"Gosh," they yelled in chorus, "Look there at the spook!" How their voices trembled, And their bodies shook; Then, up spoke one youngster, Bolder than the rest: "Ain't afraid o' punkins, Even when they're dressed."

Then he hurried forward, Pulled the sheet away, Saw young Johnnie hiding, Just as plain as day: Now poor John feels awful, Wishes he were dead—Everybody calls him "Johnnie Pumpkin Head."

LaMoure scored after holding Oakes from the kickoff, taking their punt and drove the ball to the 10 yard line where Schock too it over on a wide end run behind perfect interference.

FINANCES OF SCHOOLS ARE CONSIDERED

State Tax Commissioner, in Report, Shows Increase in Cost in the State

PER CAPITA COST

Tax Statistics Show it Rises From $22.21 to $111.05 Per Pupil in State

Consideration of the problem of how to reduce taxes necessarily involves a study of expenditures for educational purposes, it is stated by C. C. Converse, state tax commissioner, in his biennial report, filed with the Governor here today.

Declaring that good schools are assured in the state because there is unanimous sentiment in favor of them, and declaring their future is assured, the tax commissioner discussed the question of whether school expenditures can be reduced through greater efficiency.

"At all events, it is clear that no adequate amount of tax reduction is possible unless school expenditures can be curtailed as they occasion such a large part of the total strain upon public revenues," said Mr. Converse in his report. "Taxes levied locally for school purposes in 1923 constituted $47.82 percent of the aggregate amount of taxes levied within the state by all tax levying authorities, including those of the state government, counties, school districts, townships, cities, villages and park districts. The amount of taxes levied locally for school purposes in 1923 was greater than in any previous year in the history of the state."

"The aggregate amount levied by school districts and counties for school purposes, being $14,369,123 equivalent to a per capita burden of $22.21, or, for the average family of five, a yearly burden of $111.05. This is not the total contribution to educational purposes, for to this there must be added the legislative appropriations of $1,631,053 for state educational institutions, $265,375 for state aid to local schools and $1,464,042 of income from endowment funds. While tax levies for school purposes increased substantially in 1923 over those of 1922, it is not possible to be certain at the time this report goes to the printer, whether expenditures for current expenses increased or decreased. There is a possibility that current expenses decreased even though the 1923 levy was larger, for it may be that a portion of the levy was made for the purpose of providing funds with which to meet outstanding warrants in an effort to put the business of school districts upon a cash basis."

The economies to be adopted to make this reduction a reality, he said, will be solved by voters of the individual school district, the tax commissioner says, pointing out some of the chief expenses of schools. Transportation cost is approximately $1,000,000 a year, he said. Whether this should be decreased in teachers' salaries which are left largely to local boards, he says, pointing out that salaries of school teachers for the state as a whole are approximately $8,200,000 a year.

Not Due To Pupils
The tremendous increases in school taxes have been due chiefly to an increase in the school population of the state, the tax commissioner's report says. "In part they have been due to increased commodity prices, increased transportation charges and increased living costs generally which have necessitated salary increases. That increased commodity prices are responsible for only a portion of the increase in local tax levies for schools is evident from a comparison of the percentages of increase in tax levies for school purposes over those of 1923 with percentages of increase in the cost of living over that of 1913."

The table shows the school taxes in 1923 were, $14,369,123, the percentage of increase over the 1913 levies was 181.1 percent, while the cost of living increase over 1913 was 73.2 percent.

Increase in Teachers
"There has been an increase in the number of teachers employed, and this increase has been disproportionate to the increase in the number of pupils," the report says. "It is most marked in city schools and is due in part to the increased number of pupils attending high school. There is a prevalent belief, also, that a portion of the increase in the number of teachers employed is due to the more ample organization of instructional staffs which has come about in recent years. It is commonly believed that there has been an increase in the number of supervisors and that those who have superintending duties have done less actual work in an instructional capacity; in short, that the organization of city schools has been unnecessarily elaborate. There is a common belief that a part of the increase in the number of teachers is due to an over-ambitious high school program, and that high schools are offering more elective branches than are necessary for the welfare of the pupils and more than taxpayers can fairly be called upon to provide."

High School Problem
The present economic trend has brought about a serious high school problem, the report points out. The legislature provided that a school district must provide a high school or must pay a certain tuition in another district. This provision, it is stated, has proved inadequate because the amount which it is made the duty of the home district to pay is not sufficient to reimburse the district in which the child attends. The suggestion is advanced that the county be made the unit of high school for the payment of high school tuition, instead of the township. The automobile, the report says, has proved disadvantageous to the small town. If the smaller towns discontinue high schools, pupils would flock to the larger cities, where high schools already are over-taxed. It is desirable that the child be kept near home for instruction, Mr. Converse says.

"If the county is made the unit for taxation to meet high school tuition, and that item is thus adequately provided for, it will be possible for more of the smaller towns to maintain high schools, and this is an end much to be desired," says the tax commissioner.

DUNN COUNTY WILL MARKET MUCH WHEAT

Dunn Center, N. D., Oct. 30.—Dunn county farmers will market more than 2,000,000 bushels of wheat this year, on the basis of amounts already hauled to elevators or shipped, grainmen estimate.

A survey of wheat receipts and shipments at towns where Dunn county farmers market grain, shows that 1,013,000 bushels of wheat have already been hauled to elevators and about 835,000 bushels of this have been shipped out.

Grainmen and others have estimated that about 60 percent of the crop is yet to be marketed.

Killdeer Receipts Lead
Killdeer, with its large elevator facilities and big territory to draw from, leads with wheat receipts of 268,000 bushels and shipments of 205,000 bushels. Other wheat receipts by towns follow: Dunn Center, 163,000; Werner, 138,000; Haliday, 145,000; Dodge, 95,000. Considerable grain was hauled by Dunn county farmers to Taylor, Richardson and Dickinson, in Stark county. The grain has been of exceptionally good quality and weight, grading usually No. 1 dark northern, and weighing more than 60 pounds to the bushel.

SPILLS OIL, GIRL BURNED

Lighted Lamp to Keep Baby From Crying

Valley City, N. D., Oct. 30.—Because she wanted to light a kerosene lamp to keep her five months old brother from crying when the evening shadows had dimmed the light in the farm home, while the two were alone, Doris, seven year, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Isensee, farmers residing about 15 miles northeast of the city, is lying in a critical condition at the Valley City hospital, the victim of severe burns sustained when she struck a match on the sole of her shoe attempting to light a kerosene lamp.

The youthful victim was left in the farm home with her brother, while the mother and another daughter, Frances, 7, were milking and the father was at an elevator with a load of grain. According to information obtained from Doris, her infant brother commenced crying when the home darkened as the day drew to a close and knowing that if a light were burning he would be quiet, decided to fill the kerosene lamp and light it. Although it is believed she was unable to remove the cap from the oil hole in the lamp, she spilled some of the oil on her clothing. She then struck a match on the sole of her shoe and almost simultaneously with its lighting her clothing was a mass of flames.

Enveloped in Flames
Within a period of a few seconds, the little girl was enveloped in fire and rushed from the home crying, "mother, mother, I am burning."

Mrs. Isensee coming from the barn in which she was milking was almost frantic when she saw her daughter's clothing in flames. Probably her presence of mind saved the little girl from certain death. She rushed her to a nearby water tank and succeeded in extinguishing the fire but not until it had burned the little girl very severely about her

PILLAR STAYS, FOR TOWN IS AFRAID TO MOVE IT

By NEA Service
Augusta, Ga., Oct. 30.—For 46 years an old pillar has stood in the middle of the sidewalk on one of the main streets here, just because people have been afraid to move it. Hundreds walk around it daily.

The day before the tornado of 1878, an itinerant preacher addressing a meeting in front of the old market house, predicted the building would be destroyed by a cyclone. Only one of the big concrete pillars supporting it, he said, would be left standing. And any attempt to move it, he warned, would be fatal. The person who tried it will be struck by lightning.

The cyclone came the next day. It razed the market house just as the preacher had predicted. One pillar alone remained.

Later in the year a street was cut through where the market formerly had stood. When it was found it would be necessary to move the pillar, considerable difficulty was experienced in getting men who were willing to undertake the job. Finally a few were found.

Nothing happened until they had gone about 25 feet with the old post. Then a terrific explosion was heard. It later developed a practical joker had touched off a giant firecracker.

But the pillar never was moved any further. It was set up just where it had fallen. The sidewalk was built around it.

Ever since Augusta residents have been walking around the "pillar with a curse."

New Type of Car Stirs Automobile World

It is an open car one moment and 30 seconds later same car is entirely enclosed. Studebaker Duplex ends need of hunting for side curtains in the dark and storm

A new type of car has stirred the automobile world as has nothing since the abandonment of the "buggy" style of body building.

It is the Studebaker Duplex, so called to indicate that it is an open car one moment, and 30 seconds later it is an enclosed car.

Like all great advances in the industrial arts, it is "so simple in operation, it is a wonder it wasn't thought of before" — — —

Particularly since its need has been growing, year by year, ever since automobiles were made.

Many people all of the time, and most people part of the time, want an open car—to bring to their riding the fresh crispness of the country air, and a free and untrammelled association with the great outdoors.

Yet for these same people, the snug comfort of the closed car, shutting out the storm and the wind and the cold, has been at times a necessity.

Two cars in one

The Studebaker Duplex is both cars in one. Just pull down the roller enclosures concealed in the roof of the car. In 30 seconds the open car has been made an enclosed car.

No hurried efforts to put up curtains; no hunting for the right one while the storm beats in; no mixing them up in the dark; no exposure through holes torn in them while trying to obtain, for the emergency, the protection given by a closed car — — —

Just pull down the roller enclosures giving instant enclosed car effect.

The body is built substantially—sides, corners and roof frame are of steel. The roof has curved steel sides and back; hardwood front. Steel, U-shaped cross beams, six of them, support the waterproofed, duplex fabric top and its linings. Here is permanent beauty, no sagging tops.

But Studebaker, on which the whole vehicle-using world has come to depend for reliability, would not rest on only one real contribution to the value given the public.

It must give all that engineering ability could devise.

Striking new features

So there are offered three distinct models of cars, to meet each of the three fields of demand—the Standard Six, with 113-inch wheelbase and 50 horsepower motor; the Special Six, with 120-inch wheelbase and 65 horsepower motor; the Big Six, most magnificent and luxurious of its products, with 127-inch wheelbase and 75 horsepower motor.

Duplex bodies are available on each line. In addition, closed models have workmanship and materials and beauty of line so far above the price class of the car, they must be seen to be appreciated.

Of scarcely less importance than the Duplex feature are other improvements such as, automatic ignition system, lighting control on the steering wheel, new location of emergency brake, improved one-piece windshield and many others.

The body lines, steering mechanism, and even the fenders of the new Studebaker were designed especially for genuine balloon tires. Thus the body lines harmonize with grace and beauty hitherto unattained, even by Studebaker.

Come in and see these new cars.
